U. S. Uncertain About Action In Orient

NO ASSURANCE GIVEN LEAGUE,
STIMSON SAYS

Nation Still to Decide Extent

Russia Said to Be Aroused
Over Military Moves
in Chinese Zone

Washington (AP)—Ambassador Daves is staying out of the league of nations Manchurian sessions at Paris because the United States is not ready to decide how far it will accompany the league along the pathway toward forceful measures against Japan.

Secretary Stimson said today no assurances had been given or were being given whether this government would join in an economic boycott or withdraw its diplomatic representatives from Japan if the Japanese troops stay in Manchuria. He denied flatly a published story that a promise against such action had been given.

The United States does not regard itself as involved in the present league dilemma arising from Japan's refusal to withdraw her troops by last night as the league requested. Washington did not associate itself with that time limit and is letting the league decide for itself what it now will do.

All this is a part of the determination of Washington to maintain freedom of action. Stimson at so declared he did not regard what now is being done as in any way a change of attitude by the United States.

American Position

What the United States has done, variably in cooperation with the league, may be summarized as follows:

It urged Japan a month ago to withdraw troops to be coupled with Japanese guarantees of protection for Japanese nations and property. It joined the league in asking Japan not to permit any further advance of the troops, and also made the same request directly to Tokyo.

It refrained carefully from anything that looked like setting a time limit or from acting either diplomatically or economically.

In the past month the American requests have been disregarded. The troops have advanced. Further ill feeling has been engendered in Manchuria. Japan takes the position now that withdrawal would leave Manchuria in a state of riot and disorder.

A solution is hoped for through the Paris meeting, but the United States is not willing to commit itself in advance by associating directly with the forthcoming league decision.

Paris (AP)—Portents of changes in the attitudes of the United States and Russia today threw fresh anxiety over the league of nations council, which is facing the test of its dozen years existence in an effort to restore peace in Manchuria.

Reliable indications appeared overnight that the United States was relaxing its firm stand for Japanese evacuation of the disputed area and that Russia is beginning to hesitate against Japanese military activities close to the Siberian frontier.

The members of the council, without the Chinese and Japanese representatives, met privately at the Quai d'Orsay shortly before noon. The meeting followed private individual conversations of Ambassador

W. P. Kenny, above, vice president and director of traffic of the Great Northern Railway, has been named to succeed Ralph Budd as president of the line. Budd will become president of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy on Jan. 1.

Riske Given
New Trial In Drug Deaths

Holding that the state failed to prove beyond reasonable doubt that Edward Riske was in possession of poison which caused the death of Louis Hoffman and Henry Kopitzke, Judge Byron B. Park last night granted a new trial to Riske. This action was taken at a hearing in the courthouse at Waupun.

It is probable the new trial will be held at the May term of court and Riske will remain in jail until that time.

A motion for an arrest of judgment, based on the discovery that George Suits, foreman of the jury, was a second cousin of the homicide victim, was set aside after defense counsel admitted Suits apparently did not know of the relationship until after the verdict.

Judge Park criticized the manner in which defense attorneys handled the case, declaring they had undoubtedly prejudiced the jurors against their client. He also based his ruling on the belief the state's case was primarily circumstantial, declaring there was no proof beyond reasonable doubt that Riske had poison in his possession or that he had an opportunity to administer poison to the victim.

Verdicts of first degree murder and acquittal were submitted to the jury by Judge Park. Hoffman and Henry Kopitzke died at a barn dance near New London last June 29 after drinking poisonous liquor. Riske, accused by the state of plotting Hoffman's death so that he might marry the victim's wife, was not tried in connection with Kopitzke's death. Mrs. Hoffman committed suicide by drowning shortly before the inquest.

SEN. LA FOLLETTE FOR PUBLIC WORKS PLAN

Salt Lake City (AP)—A federal program of public works as a means of relieving the economic situation will be proposed at the next session of congress by Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin, the senator said here last night.

He said he would propose a federal bond issue of several billion dollars to be taken up by the Federal Reserve system which would issue federal reserve notes against the bonds. He said he also planned legislation to empower the federal government to assume part of the burden of city and county governments in providing funds for unemployment relief. The senator was here to address the Bonnevill club.

TROOPER ACCUSED OF SLAYING IN MICHIGAN

Iron Mountain, Mich. (AP)—Testimony in the trial of Theodore G. Friege, Michigan State police trooper charged with the slaying of Richard Franklin last Sept. 28 in a raid on an Iroquois, Mich., soft drink parlor, was heard by a jury here today.

Selection of the jury occupied most of yesterday's initial session. In opening statements the state's attorneys contended the shooting was unnecessary. Friege has pleaded self defense.

Franklin was fatally shot when the trooper and another officer attempted to quiet a disorder in the saloon and dance hall operated by Arthur Stachura.

ROB MINNESOTA BANK

Cologne, Minn. (AP)—Two gunmen robbed the State Bank of Cologne of $2,851 today. Two employees and two customers were ordered to lie on the floor while the pair fled in an automobile.

RELIEF GROUP IS APPOINTED BY HEINEMANN

Names Personnel of Relief
Committee to Conduct
Fund Campaign

Judge Fred V. Heinemann, chairman of the Citizen's Relief committee, today appointed the seven other members of the committee. The committee will conduct the drive to raise $30,000 in Appleton for the relief of unemployed next winter.

Members of the committee are J. D. Steele, A. C. Bossert, Charles H. Huesemann, Gustave Keller, Sr., George H. Schmidt, Dr. D. S. Runnels and P. M. Conkey.

The first meeting of the committee will be held Wednesday afternoon at the office of Judge Heinemann at the courthouse. At that time the committee will set the dates for the fund campaign and will adopt a system for collecting the funds. It is likely that a captain will be appointed whose duty it will be to head the teams which will conduct the drive.

Judge Heinemann's committee is independent, although it is an interlocking group of the Appleton Welfare and Relief council. The council recently was organized by Appleton groups which engage in charitable work. The relief council, acting as an independent unit, will supervise the distribution of the fund and the extension of relief to needy families.

F. E. Bachman, city treasurer, will be custodian of the funds collected by the Citizen's Relief committee. The goal of $30,000 was set by the relief and welfare council.

Milwaukee (AP)—Pearl Daniels, hostess at the Green Lantern Inn, near Appleton today was fined $200 and sentenced four months in the house of correction by Federal Judge F. A. Geiger for violation of the liquor laws.

Miss Daniels, blond "Tiger Woman," was mentioned by investigators as a close friend of Hugo Mueller, Milwaukee police official who killed himself some months ago.

Helena Owens, arrested with Miss Daniels, received a similar sentence. John Johnston, charged jointly with the two as operators of the inn, was sentenced to one year and fined $500.

Mrs. Martha Kunkel, 55, Cedarburg, was fined $300 for possession of wine and home brew in her restaurant; Frank Javoroski, Florence, four months and $200; Matt Wallace, Juneau, six months and $250; and John B. Walters, Hartford, three months, $100.

ESCAPED CONVICT IS HELD AS BANK BANDIT

Detroit (AP)—James Overstreet, alias Hall, said by the police to be a notorious western bank robber, was held here today with three other persons for a bank robbery in Michigan, Kansas and Oklahoma.

Overstreet first gave his name as James Hall but later admitted he had escaped from the state prison at McAlester, Okla., last June, where he was serving a 10-year sentence for a bank robbery.

Overstreet was arrested last night by detectives who had previously arrested his wife, Margaret James McCor, and McCoy's fiancée, Virginia Dadds, at Overstreet's home here.

Madison (AP)—John B. Chapple, youthful Ashland editor and foe of "Communism and Socialism" carried to some 200 members of the University of Wisconsin student body last night his charges that President Glenn Frank and an element of the university faculty are permitting "insidious doctrines" to be pressed into the minds of students.

Under the topic, "Destructive forces at the University of Wisconsin," Mr. Chapple addressed an assembly arranged by the new campus organization, the League for the Defense of American Principles.

The editor said he had no fault to find with the university as a whole but enumerated a lengthy list of faculty members from President Frank down whose teachings and pronouncements, he said, have been antagonistic to the American economic system.

"They have no right to their paychecks," Mr. Chapple asserted. "They are attacking the very system that supports them."

Bascom hall on the campus was overflowing with heavers. But there was in the audience an obvious majority of students—these not affiliated with the new organization—who disagreed with the speaker's views and frequently interrupted him with untimely applause, with laughing and booing.

U. S. TAX INCREASE PROSPECTS GROWING

Bacharach Offers Program
—Hawley Still Doubts
Need for Revision

Washington (AP)—Prospects for increased taxation continued to engross legislators today with renewed proposals for higher income levies mingling with doubt that increases are imperative in the next session.

Representative Bacharach, New Jersey, advanced a plan which contemplated a graduated increase on income taxes above $20,000, application of a gift tax and luxury taxes and an increase in estate taxes. He estimated it would bring an additional $750,000,000 in revenue.

Senate administration leaders have become convinced that increased taxes will be necessary, Senator Watson, senate Republican leader, announcing yesterday after talking to President Hoover that he thought higher levies would have to come.

From a house Republican leader, Representative Hawley of Oregon, today, however, came word he was not convinced revision was a necessity.

GRANDI URGES MOVE TOWARD
SLASH IN ARMS

"High Time to Seek Practical Result," Italian Minister Declares

Washington (AP)—Dino Grandi said today it was high time the nations of the world reached a practical answer to the disarmament question.

The Italian foreign minister pronounced this the most important problem "existing in the relations between countries."

He made the statement at a press conference in the office of Secretary Stimson at a time when he was scheduled to confer within a few hours with President Hoover.

A little later, however, his discussion with the president was postponed until tomorrow morning because of a prior engagement of the foreign minister to speak at a meeting of the "Overseas Writers" organization.

Responding to a question regarding the possibility of a Franco-Italian naval settlement, the minister expressed his "hope such an agreement could be reached."

"Italy feels such an agreement would be good and it would be welcomed by everybody in Italy," he said.

The minister spoke in English, freely and fluently.

The only question to which he did not respond directly was whether he would specifically discuss with President Hoover and Secretary Stimson Italy's stand for Versailles treaty revision.

"Don't put that difficult question to me," he said smiling.

Points to Arms Holiday

In answering questions on the disarmament problem he referred to America's ready agreement to the one year's armament holiday which he put forward at Geneva as Italy's representative.

His reason for proposing the treaty, which has become effective through its acceptance by the principal nations, he said, was as "a demonstration of goodwill."

"The peace of earth and the peace of heaven," he added, "through America's ready acceptance of the treaty can be called an Italian-American idea."

He said the purpose of his visit to President Hoover was to bring peaceful cooperation of all nations and to contribute to their economy recovery.

Asked if he brought with him a specific proposal, the minister replied it was only with the discussion of specific ideas that the best could be contributed toward recovery.

Later in reaching the capital last night, the Italian minister and Signora Grandi were welcomed with the full honors due foreign guests of the nation. A few minutes later they were escorted to the Hotel Ritz, where they were met by Mrs. Hoover at the White House. Informal greetings were exchanged in Italian and the couple turned off to Secretary Stimson's home for dinner and a good night's sleep.

FEDERAL PRISONER

Flees from Deputy Marshal on Way to Green Bay from Milwaukee

Milwaukee (AP)—Federal and state officers were engaged today in a search for Frank Anderson, 32, federal prisoner, who escaped from the automobile of William J. McCormick, deputy United States marshal, while being brought to Milwaukee from Green Bay. The officer and his prisoner had arrived within a few blocks of the county jail last night when Anderson bolted.

McCormick said that Anderson, alias Paul Schotte or Paul Anderson, was named in warrants from Grand Rapids, Mich., charging that in September, 1931, he smuggled liquor from Canada and concealed it at Sault Ste. Marie, and that he transported liquor from Canada to Eagle River, Mich., in September, 1932.

Anderson, a former soft drink parlor operator in Green Bay, had been held in the Brown-co jail following his arrest ten days ago on failure to post $15,000 bond.

He was to have appeared before Federal Judge F. A. Geiger here for hearing on an order for removal to Michigan.

Tragedy

Milwaukee (AP)—Two women and a man were killed, a girl was in a critical condition in a hospital, and a truck driver was held today by authorities at Cudahy, a suburb as a result of two hit-and-run automobile accidents last night.

Wilfred Lipton, 22, of Cudahy, and his wife, Anna, 35, were killed and Miss Dorothy Hopmann, 14, sustained fractures of both legs and internal injuries when they were waiting to board a street car.

The body of an unidentified woman, about 45, was picked up about the time of the Cudahy accident on a Milwaukee street after several cars had passed over it. Three men were questioned and released.

Louis Komorowski, 32, Cudahy, an employee of a meat distributing company, was taken into custody in connection with the Lipton deaths. Police said he admitted driving a truck in the vicinity of the crash and examination of the machine revealed broken headlights and a smashed fender.

The suspect, however, denied any knowledge of having struck the trio. There were no eye-witnesses, authorities said, the bodies having been discovered by Andrew Trzaska who passed the spot shortly after they were hurled to the pavement.

Harold Siegel, a son of a Cudahy garage owner, told authorities Komorowski drove his battered truck into the garage and offered to pay $10 for repairing the damage. Siegel refused and when Komorowski drove away to put the truck in the company's garage, he notified police.

GOVERNOR PUTS
17 QUESTIONS

Ten of Matters Listed Refer to State Jobless Relief Problems

Madison (AP)—Governor La Follette today issued his formal call for the convening of the special session of the legislature Nov. 24, authorizing the lawmakers to act on 17 different matters, 10 of which refer to unemployment relief.

The governor was in accord with yesterday's report on the interim committee on unemployment in recommending increased income taxes to help finance state aid for relief work but did not provide for a direct tax as the committee did.

Alternative tax measures which he proposed were: A gift tax, a chain store tax and an increase in the inheritance tax.

FAVORS NEW TAXES

Suggests Gift, Chain Store and Increased Inheritance Levies

In addition to unemployment measures the governor threw the special session open to three other subjects: Reapportionment of the congressional and state legislative districts in accordance with the 1930 census. Enactment of banking legislation. Amendments to utility regulation and oleomargarine tax laws passed at the regular session, to which constitutional objections were raised and so far have been sustained in Dane-county court.

State Banks Problem

The bill for banking legislation was not covered in detail but there is to be a report to the legislature by the interim committee on banking with which the governor has worked closely and which is expected to recommend measures for strengthening unit banks, possibly with some restrictions on chain banking. The report of that committee likely will not be made public until given to the legislature.

The governor's call was correlated to consideration of the action of the unemployment committee, although two members of that body submitted minority conclusions. The majority of the committee recommended $100,000 in state funds for unemployment relief, with $50,000 would be allotted to local governments. $50,000 would constitute a free fund and $150,000 would go for forestry work.

FOUR QUESTIONED IN MYSTERY SHOOTING

Asked to Give Account of Movements Day Recluse
Was Found Dead

Monticello (AP)—Four men are being questioned today by Dist. Atty. Randall J. Elmer to ascertain whether or they were in any way involved in the slaying of Fred Lutz, 51-year-old bachelor farmer.

The men, Elmer said, were not necessarily suspects. But he is asking them to explain their movements last Thursday, the day Lutz's body, a bullet through the heart, was found in his tumble down shack.

Meanwhile the body of Lutz's dog was exhumed and it was sent to Madison where chemical analysis will be made to determine whether the beast had been poisoned. The dog was at Lutz's home when the farmer's body was found, but he did not show a reputation for extreme ferocity. The animal was very meek.

Elmer may have been suffering from polio, Sheriff Myron West believes. The dog later Thursday was shot by a deputy.

Stand on Taxes

Governor La Follette specified income tax increases affecting both corporations and individuals during 1931 only.

The governor's office said this stipulation in the call means that the income taxes, if levied must be collected all at once and must be levied on cash returns with no regard to capital gains or losses. He said the effect of this is a "major" not affecting public and private employees and a "minor" without regard to capital gains or losses and whether the income came from dividends or any other source.

EMPLOYMENT BILLS

Other unemployment measures which the governor asked the legislature to act upon were:

An unemployment insurance law requiring businesses to set up reserves against unemployment effective July 1, 1932. Such legislation, however, would only become operative if a substantial part of business and industry fails before that time to establish voluntary unemployment compensation systems.

Repeal of a law of 1927 which permitted the industrial commission to issue orders, after investigation, requiring the payment of fines to keep employees as many as possible and would annul the department of agriculture and markets to set up safeguards around agreements by industries or occupations to stabilize their production and employment.

HOOPER PLEASED WITH RESPONSE TO PROPOSAL

Washington (AP)—President Hoover expressed pleasure today at the response to his proposal to establish a system of home loan discount banks. Smiling at a group of newspaper correspondents about his desk he remarked there had been a "continued flood of favorable telegrams coming in from almost every town and section."

J. I. Case Co. Outlines Unemployment Insurance Program

WORKERS AND FIRM PROVIDE NEEDED FUNDS

Contributions from Both Set Up During Period of Employment

Racine.—(P)—An unemployment insurance and savings plan to protect workers in future periods of business depression was being placed in operation today by the J. I. Case company, machinery manufacturers.

The plan was developed by Leon R. Clausen, president. It will be a cooperative effort, company and worker, contributing equally to a fund which, in the future, will alleviate the misfortunes of unemployment.

Benefits of the plan will be extended to all workers paid an hourly wage or on a piece rate basis. It will be available to workers employed at least 35 hours a week.

Mr. Clausen outlined the plan as follows: On each pay day, a worker will give 5 per cent of his wages to a trust fund. His contribution will be matched dollar for dollar by the Case company, and an individual account will credit him with his deposit as well as that of the company.

Payments to the fund will continue at the rate of 5 per cent until the amount accumulated to the credit of an individual equals the average pay for six months. Then contributions will be reduced to 2 per cent, for both company and worker, and on this basis payments will continue until the sum accumulated equals a year's average pay. Contributions then cease.

How Plan Works In the event of unemployment, the worker, upon application, will be paid from the fund. He will receive a maximum of 40 per cent of his average income. Payments will continue as long as the worker desires, or until the fund is exhausted.

A worker leaving the employ of the Case company will not sacrifice his savings, or money paid into the fund for him by the company. Trustees will hold the money, and in the event of unemployment he will make payments to him at the usual rates.

In case of death or permanent disability, trustees will pay the worker or his estate the usual income provided by the plan. Relations between the fund and the worker will be stated explicitly in an individual contract, Mr. Clausen said. All of the conditions under which payments are to be made from the fund have not been worked out in detail, he asserted.

The Outagamie Oil and Gas Co. has moved its drill from the Ernest Withuhn farm on Highway 47 to the Matt Warner farm, two and one-half miles east of Highway 47 on County Trunk S, where it is now in operation.

According to company officials the drill has reached a depth of approximately 100 feet and has already struck several oil tracts. The firm expects to continue operations on the Warner farm indefinitely. Two drillers and a night watchman are employed on the drill.

The drill was in operation for some time on the Withuhn farm where company officials said oil tracts were discovered.

NO COMEDY IN FALL OF LLOYD HAMILTON AS CRUTCHES BREAK

Hollywood, Calif.—(P)—For several weeks Lloyd Hamilton, film comedian, was in a Hollywood hospital, his left leg broken as the result of a traffic mishap. He was released a few days ago to hobble about on crutches. Last night he visited his actor friend, Rex Lease, and, on departing, undertook to demonstrate to Lease how he could walk. He started for his automobile. The crutches collapsed and the actor fell, breaking his right leg. He was returned to the hospital.

MOTION PICTURE BENEFIT SHOWS THURSDAY NIGHT

Theatres in Appleton Take Part in Movement of National Scope

For the first time since the World war, citizens of the United States will make a concerted effort to sit down together at a motion picture show to aid those less fortunate than themselves. This effort has resulted in what is known as National Motion Picture week to be observed from Nov. 18 to 25.

Joining this nation-wide movement, managers of Appleton's three motion picture houses have designated the 9 o'clock show on Thursday evening as the benefit performance. Proceeds from that show will be turned over to the Citizens Relief and Welfare society headed by Judge Fred V. Heinemann. Approximately 5,000 tickets have been put on sale at 50 cents each and will be honored at the 9 o'clock show Thursday evening.

Major John Goodland, Jr., has extended his cooperation to this movement by lending a prearranged asking Appleton residents to buy tickets for the benefit show.

National Motion Picture week was suggested to Owen D. Young by Will H. Hays after consultation with all elements of the motion picture industry, and was enthusiastically accepted by Mr. Young as part of his plan for mobilizing resources under the authority of the president's organization. Its objects are to raise as much money as possible for unemployment relief with the utmost dispatch and as little hardship on all concerned as possible.

15,000,000 Attendance It is expected that benefit performances will be given in as many as 20,000 theatres and that the attendance at them may be in excess of 15,000,000.

Launching this national coast-to-coast plan of benefit shows, Mr. Young called upon the motion picture industry, as he called on all organized industries for assistance. The motion picture industry met the situation in the medium in which it is accustomed to work—shows. During this week motion picture theatres everywhere will extend their various cooperations in exploitation of the local relief efforts, details to be worked out according to needs of respective local relief agencies and in accordance with local theatre conditions.

Committees were appointed, and work apportioned all centering down to the local committee in each town of the United States. Neil Duffy of the Elit Theatre has been named chairman of the movement in Appleton by the National Producers association. William Lyons, Frank Glascock and Charles Husemann are in charge of the ticket sale in this city. Behind the efforts of the national committee will be the labors of more than 1,000 individuals and the contributions of skilled labor and time of artisans, mechanics and laborers numbering at least 10,000. Union regulations and factory rules have gone by the board in this unified effort. The leaders of the union

Sees Survival Of Rabbits And Ring-Neck Pheasants

BY E. A. CLAFIN

I believe the rabbit and the ring-neck pheasant will be the game left to the hunters after every other species is wiped out.

CLAFIN have seen personally this fall, and from reports sent me, I am led to believe that rabbits are more plentiful than for several years. This, of course, is merely my opinion, though it is based on actual contact with the situation. Just why the open season for hunting them allows but five per cent of the population to be killed is beyond me. It seems almost in view of the excellent crop of the animals this year, together with the fact that hunters are denied the privilege of getting any ducks because of their unquestionable scarcity. I think no one needs worry about the rabbit being able to maintain himself, barring, of course, some possible epidemic of sickness which is not on the books at the present time.

There are thousands of acres of wild land in Marinette county alone. All this land will never be available for agriculture because of the nature of the soil which is, for the most part, sandy and unproductive. I refer to the plains country around the Thunder Mountain region, in the Town of Stephenson.

This great tract could be made into one of the greatest natural game sections in the state. Every trip I have made through there this fall I have seen game of all kinds, including ruffed grouse, chicken, squirrels, ducks and even deer. Just last week I had the pleasure of seeing a buck with a beautiful head of at least ten points.

As for fishing possibilities I have been through the state's best country of water, from St. Croix River to the Eagle Chain and I know of no more prolific stream than the Peshigo River. It has Northern Pike, Small Mouth Bass, Wall-eyes and trout of three different species. What other rivers can boast of such attractions in Wisconsin?

It appears that this great region has not had the attention it should have had by those whose efforts are directed toward the betterment of fish and game conditions in the state. They should spend a few days looking the situation over there. If they did that I believe their eyes would be opened to the possibilities of a region which has had very little attention from them heretofore.

Let me suggest that the Town of Stephenson invite the powers that be to a trip of inspection. There are several well known men who would be glad to conduct them about and show them potentialities never before dreamed of. Men like Jim Murphy, who is now County Forester for Marinette County, could point out every acre of this great nature's park. Let's do something along that line.

WEIGHT FRAUD CHARGE MADE AT FOND DU LAC

Fond du Lac.—(P)—Charged with falsification of grain weight slips with intent to defraud, Maynard Nolan and Arnold Thill faced action here today on criminal warrants, and five all-geared accomplices, two of them girls and all juveniles, will be taken into juvenile court for hearings.

The complaints were signed by Paul Boulay of the Boulay Brothers company, flour and feed dealers, who charged the group bought barley, sold it at the Boulay elevator, and then raised the weight figures before receiving payment at the Boulay office.

Questioned following the confession of one youth, the group admitted the money was spent for a "good time" at the Boulay office. An irregularity in a signature revealed the fraud.

PLYMOUTH MAN IS LIBERATED IN DRY LAW CASE

Four Co-defendants Bound Over to Grand Jury by Commissioner

Milwaukee.—(P)—Dismissal of liquor conspiracy charges against John P. Anton, Plymouth, Wis., sentenced several years ago in connection with a $100,000 whiskey theft case, was ordered after a lengthy hearing here late yesterday by U. S. Commissioner Floyd Jenkins.

Four co-defendants, Frank Bauer, Willard Fischer, Lloyd Peterson and Henry Payne, were held to the grand jury. All were arrested in a recent raid on a Plymouth brewery which disclosed a plant capable of producing, as said, from 43 to 60 barrels of beer a day.

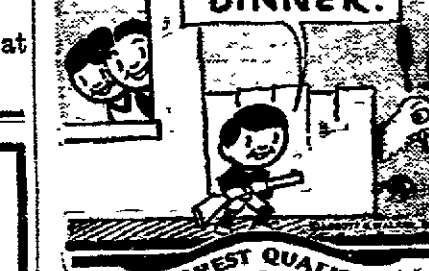

Anton advanced the alibi that he was at the brewery to get "one of the boys" to fix his cistern and several witnesses corroborated his story.

Prohibition agents exhibited a receipt which they said they found on Anton's person and which they described as instructions for making a batch of 52 barrels of beer or wort. Anton explained he obtained the penciled paper from Joseph P. Neugent, former Green Bay business man now facing liquor conspiracy charges, and Thomas A. Delaney, former federal prohibition director for Wisconsin.

Backed By Neugent Neugent testified in support of Anton's explanation, declaring that he and Delaney had asked Anton to

WIDE PROGRAM OF MUSIC AHEAD IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Cantatas, Band Concerts and Choral Appearances Are Scheduled

Musical activities in the public schools promise a varied program within the next few months, with several cantatas, band concerts and singing groups scheduled under the direction of the school music directors.

Dr. Earl Baker, supervisor of music in the public schools, with his corps of 35 Lawrence college music students as assistants is training grade school children. "When Santa Listens In" is the Christmas program under way at Columbus school with Miss Ruth Roper assisting Dr. Baker in the training.

Wilson Junior High school will present a cantata of mixed voices, "The Love Maiden" by Cowen, and Sunday students are working on the operetta, "Plymouth Rock," to be presented for Thanksgiving by the seventh and eighth grades. Miss Margaret Trueblood is assisting at this school. Similar programs will be arranged at the other schools in the city during the year.

The boys' A Cappella choir organized this fall, is a chosen group of boys from Wilson, Roosevelt and St. Mary Junior high schools. Their musical programs have not been arranged as yet.

There are 14 student orchestras in the city school working under the direction of Jay I. Williams and Miss Marion Miller. Under the present system, students are developed in stringed instruments in beginning classes and when they have reached a certain ability they become members of the beginning orchestra. As they progress they advance to the intermediate orchestras and finally the advanced student group.

40 In Orchestra

The Appleton high school orchestra has 40 members, most of the students having had previous work in the junior high school orchestras. Roosevelt Junior high school has three orchestras with 30 students in the beginning group, 25 in the intermediate group and 24 in the advanced group. McKinley Junior high school has only one orchestra. Wilson Junior high school, an advanced and beginning group, St. Joseph Junior high school two orchestras and St. Paul Lutheran school two orchestras. Zion parish school groups, of which there also are two, is under the direction of Miss Williams.

Appleton high school has two active bands under the direction of E. C. Moore. The first school band is working on programs for four band concerts to be given within the next two weeks. They are scheduled to play for the Lions club luncheon Monday, Nov. 23, the Fifth Ward Voters' club, Tuesday evening, Nov. 24. They will appear in a band concert Friday morning at the college convocation at Lawrence Memorial chapel and Sunday evening at the Vespers service at First Methodist church.

STUDENTS PREFER SCIENTIFIC BOOKS

Non-College English Class Reveals This, Teacher Reports

Students prefer scientific books in their reading of aviation, nursing, social service work or some other vocational phase, it was found in a non-college English class conducted by Miss Sophia Haase at Appleton high school.

In a reading project recently completed by the students in the subject of vocations, Miss Haase declared that most of the students chose books which contained much factual material. In contrast to the college English class, this particular class for those students who do not intend to continue their education, studies its work from a vocational outlook. The students stress various careers, studying the field and analyzing the various phases of the work, its requirements and development. The mechanics of theme writing and grammar are stressed in the college group, whereas the non-college class learns how to write business letters and how to interview. Both classes receive credit.

Each student selects a vocation in this class and after studying the details of the work, presents reports of autobiographies of famous men and women who have made a success in the work. These reports include the life of such people as Jane Addams, Florence Nightingale, Col. Charles Lindbergh, Pasteur and other great scientists or men of letters.

Vernon Berkman was elected president of the forensics club organized last week at Appleton high school. The other officers include William Chopin, vice president; Miss Marie Ritzer, secretary and treasurer, and Howard Rietz, sergeant at arms.

The group of 30 students who organized at the first meeting last week became charter members of the club and the group adopted the constitution at a second meeting Friday afternoon. It was decided that any high school student interested in debate, declamatory or extemporaneous work is eligible to the club and will be admitted upon two thirds vote of the club. The next meeting of the club will be Monday, Nov. 23.

AID TO VETERANS IN LAST YEAR WAS $4,118

Relief extended to soldiers and sailors and their families in Outagamie county during the year ending Oct. 31, 1931, totaled $4,118.41, according to a report received by the county board from the soldiers' and sailors' relief commission. Members of the commission are Charles A. Green, James A. Balliet and A. O. Hecht.

The commission received an appropriation of $5,000 last November, which plus a balance of $13.26 made $5,013.26 available for relief work during the year. On Oct. 31 there was a balance of $594.41. Relief was extended by the commission to 42 families during the year. The commission requested an appropriation of $6,000 for relief work in 1932.

DESCRIBES LIFE IN FOREIGN COLLEGES

Intellectual Ability Is Stressed Abroad, Miss Rudin Declares

Helen Rudin, who spent last year in Europe as the representative of the Lawrence college student body to a foreign university, told of some of the impressions she received during her stay in Paris in an address at a convocation of Lawrence students Monday morning.

Miss Rudin discussed the French educational system, and told how it differs from the American system. Life in the French university was characterized as "exceedingly impersonal," in that there is absolutely no relation between the professor and the student. The French professors were described as "masters in their fields of study, and masters of oratory with their fiery and rapid lectures, and with a wealth of cultural knowledge."

"The attitudes and life of the French student are so different from those of the American student," she said. "Intellectual ability is considered above all achievements. The average high school student in France spends about 11 hours each day in study, and about two each day for recreation. A passion for knowledge and new ideas characterizes the French student. He is always seeking conversation so as to discuss his ideas, especially in regard to political policies. The French student is self sufficient, individualistic, has faith in the ways of the past and in his own way of doing things."

"The European student arrives at the university exceedingly well equipped with a thoroughly mastered foundation. Once in the university he is entirely upon his own responsibility. Most of his time is spent in discussions, usually held at

MONEY-ORDER SERVICE IS REESTABLISHED

Money order service in those territories was discontinued when Great Britain went off the gold standard.

A scrap book, prepared by Miss Rudin, and showing some of the interesting events of her journey, was presented to the college and will be placed in the reading room of the library.

REVOCATIONS NOT PERMITTED UNLESS STATE LAW IS USED

Fine or Jail Only Sentence Possible Under City or County Statutes

Drunken drivers brought into Outagamie courts in the future can be given a fine and jail sentence or either, but the judge cannot revoke their drivers' licenses unless they are arraigned under a state statute. According to a recent ruling of the attorney general to Theodore Dammann, secretary of state.

Both Outagamie and the city of Appleton have traffic ordinances which provide penalties for drunken driving. When either a city or county officer made an arrest for drunken driving in the past, it has been the custom to issue a warrant under either the city or county ordinance. This is done because the money collected in fines under city ordinances is paid to the city treasurer, while the fines collected under county ordinances are retained by the county. However, funds collected under state laws must be remitted to the state treasurer, only 2 percent being retained by the county.

In the future, according to the secretary of state, revocation or suspension of licenses will be accepted unless the offender has been arraigned under the state law.

Just how this ruling will affect those drivers whose licenses are now

They also were asked to correct any mistakes in the boundary lines of their towns. Mr. Hayes will discuss the correction of the maps, which are to be returned later to the state highway department to complete its records. The meeting was arranged by F. R. Appleton, county highway commissioner.

County Board Reelects All Members Of Highway Committee

2 SUPERVISORS RETAINED WITH NO OPPOSITION

Dr. F. P. Dohearty, Appleton, Reelected County Physician

All members of the county highway committee were reelected this morning by the county board. Only one member, Supervisor Alfred Mueller, town of Seymour, representing the northeastern section of the county, won by a close margin. He received 21 votes to 19 for Arnold Muenster, town of Osborn.

Two committee members, Fred Sievert, Appleton, representing the southern district, and Jess Lathrop, town of Horton, representing the southwestern section of the county, were reelected without opposition.

John Niesen, Kaukauna, defeated James Farrell, town of Kaukauna, 26 to 14, for the right to again represent the southeastern section of the county.

KRUEGER REELECTED
Supervisor Arnold Krueger, town of Maple Creek, was unanimously reelected chairman of the county highway committee at a special meeting this noon following the day's session of the county board. It is Mr. Krueger's third term as chairman of the committee. During the last two years, under his supervision, the highway budget has been reduced by about $35,000, a reduction of almost 70 per cent. Alfred Mueller, town of Seymour, was reelected vice chairman for his third term.

the county. Arnold Krueger, town of Maple Creek, defeated John S. Wall, town of Liberty, in the northwestern section. The vote was 29 to 11.

The county board this morning also reelected Dr. F. P. Dohearty, Appleton, county physician. Charles Kreidberg, a member of the county board of trustees; R. E. Nelson, Kaukauna, as a trustee of Riverview sanatorium; and L. F. Nelson, Kaukauna, as a member of the Outagamie Rural Normal school board.

Report Discussed
Most of the morning session was devoted to the election of officers, although the board spent a little time discussing a general accounts committee report showing the expenditure of about $330,000. P. O. Smith, Hortonville, a member of the general accounts committee, said the committee was merely a rubber stamp because all of these funds were paid out before the committee met.

It was brought to the board's attention, however, that the report included many items which are covered by state statute. Included among them was amounts paid to the state for taxes collected on legacies; distribution of income tax payments collected by the county and paid to the state and the districts; and payment to the state of money collected for fines.

Supervisor A. W. Laabs, town of Grand Chute, questioned an item covering postage for the register of deeds office. He declared the county should not pay the postage of this office because the office is on a fee basis. He contended that the payment of this claim was illegal. Stanley A. Stalid, district attorney, told the board that it was legal to pay the claim because the board had the right to determine whether the county would pay postage for the office. The board finally asked the district attorney to get a ruling from the attorney general on the matter.

$110,000 Trust Fund
The board's attention was called to the fact that the county's trust fund for the new courthouse now totals $110,000 and that some steps must be taken to invest the fund in some other manner because insurance rates on trust funds are so high as to almost be prohibitive. This matter was brought out by William Beck, Seymour, chairman of the finance committee. Several members pointed out that the county funds should be invested in government bonds. The board must be reinvested next March, Mr. Beck said, and banks have offered only 1 per cent interest plus the insurance charges which vary from 1.5 to 1.8 per cent on $1,000. It was pointed out by several board members that the county would save money by investing in government bonds. No action was taken, however.

On motion of Supervisor Anton Jansen, Little Chute, the county board approved a change in the right hunting season in Outagamie county. The season this year was the month of October. Mr. Jansen's resolution calls for open season from Nov. 1 to Dec. 15. A copy of the board's action is to be sent to the state legislature.

CHILLY WEATHER ON MENU FOR WEDNESDAY

Rubbers, slickers, and in order galoshes and ear muffs are in the next 24 hours, judging from the predictions of the weatherman for Tuesday night and Wednesday. Rain will continue in Appleton and vicinity tonight and Wednesday and the mercury is due for a long drop. Skies will be clear in the northwestern part of the state, but the southern and eastern sections will get the rough weather, the weatherman says.

RATES ON WISCONSIN CANNED GOODS FAULTY

Washington—(P)—With a few exceptions, the Interstate Commerce today approved new rates on canned goods to, from and between southern points and they will become effective Feb. 22.

It found not justified certain rates to North Carolina destinations all to the south, from Green Bay, Oconto and Sturgeon Bay, Wis., and those to Florida points.

The commission fixed the rates from Green Bay at not to exceed 5 cents per one hundred pounds over rates from Milwaukee to the same destinations; from Oconto 7 cents and from Sturgeon Bay, 8 cents over Milwaukee.

It said the decision would dispose of complaints regarding water and rail and rail-water-and-rail rates from the east through Norfolk to certain southern destinations.

It ordered cancellation of all schedules found unjustified including the Florida rates.

The proposed rates were described as averaging lower than the rate now in effect on canned goods between points in the south. They would increase rates to points in the Mississippi valley.

SCHOOL BUDGET DOWN $23,000 FROM YEAR AGO

Board of Education Takes $20,000 from Its Tax Levy

In spite of the addition of four new teachers, substantial changes in the senior high school designed to increase capacity of class rooms and inauguration of a new recreational program that will make for wider use of public school buildings, the board of education has pared its budget by $23,762 from last year's figures and its tax levy by $20,000 from the levy given to the common council a year ago.

The budget for the year ending June 30, 1932 is $447,472, as compared with $471,234 for last year, and the tax levy will be $365,000 instead of $385,000 a year ago. The difference between the tax levy and the budget is made up of receipts from tuition, special state aid, state and county school taxes, rental of books and lockers, and deposits on board of education funds.

This saving is largely due to the fact that repairs and improvements necessary this year cost about $30,000 less than a year ago. Improvements and repairs made during the last fiscal year aggregated $52,764, while the estimate for the present year is $21,650.

Salaries for teachers for the present fiscal year will total about $7,000 more than last year due to the employment of four more teachers and some slight salary increases. New equipment for the schools for this year is estimated at $14,500 as compared with $9,750 last year, but the higher figure includes an item of $8,000 for new equipment in the high school made necessary by construction. Changes have been made in the senior high school to largely increase capacity of class rooms and to provide much larger library facilities.

The recreational program, estimated to cost about $5,000 for the year, is expected to result in wider use of public school buildings by the adult population of Appleton. The plan contemplates use of the buildings after regular school hours for public meetings, programs, instruction and entertainment. Definite plans for this new enterprise have not been worked out.

The board expects to make savings in practically every phase of school operation, and the named above there will be substantial decreases in the cost of supplies and materials, transportation will cost less, fuel is less expensive and a cut of more than $4,000 was made in the item of miscellaneous expenses.

Estimates for grade school operation and maintenance indicates that the board expects to save for the present fiscal year by the $13,000 less than was actually expended a year ago. Most of this saving is due to the fact that improvements contemplated for this year are materially less than those made a year ago. The junior high school budget is about $1,100 less than last year, but about $5,000 more than was expended a year ago because of improvements made in that building of $2,000 more than last year and $6,000 more than was actually expended.

General control budget, due to the inclusion of $5,000 for the recreation program increased $5,000 over last year's budget, and is about $7,000 more than the expenditures of the department.

The $447,472 budget for the year is divided as follows:

Grades	152,430
General Control	39,975
Special Classes	22,705
Senior high school	112,017
Junior high school	120,295

In his recommendations Mr. Denney asked better diamond ball and tennis court upkeep by the city, addition to the swimming pool or a new pool, wading pools for children in various parks, shuffle board courts at the larger play grounds, more swings, slides, sand boxes, and trapezes. He pointed out the improvements are usually are using grounds and because the depression, with increased idle time for adults, has prompted more people to use playgrounds.

$29 IN GOODS, CASH TAKEN BY BURGLARS

Griesbach and Bosch Grocery Entered Sometime Sunday Night

Cash totalling about $4 and merchandise estimated to be worth about $25 was taken by burglars from the Griesbach and Bosch grocery, 509 N. Richmond st., Sunday night. The burglary was discovered about 7:50 Monday morning by Mrs. George Brusch, who lives next to the grocery. She noticed a window in the garage had been broken and called O. J. Griesbach, one of the proprietors. Investigation showed the burglars had broken the glass in the window of the garage and then cut through a heavy screen which covered the window from the inside. From the garage, which adjoins the grocery, the burglars made their way through a door that was unlocked, into the store. They left by the garage doors, which they left unlocked. Mr. Griesbach said that the cash was taken from a money drawer. The merchandise consisted of cigars, playing cards, and candy bars.

counties for one year only which could be used exclusively for reducing local taxes so much per $1,000 of valuation, according to the amount distributed.

May Prolong Term

The inclusion of possible amendments to the oleo tax law and the utility regulation statute will have the effect of prolonging the special session if any of the subjects are referred to the legislature for action. Aside from the matters of unemployment, reapportionment and banking legislation, these two subjects were the only ones, out of a lengthy batch of requests, that the governor permitted to come before the special session.

Judge A. G. Zimmerman recently held the oleo tax, as it applies to retailers, to be prohibitive and therefore unconstitutional. The court ruled that the classifications of the retail taxes were extremely confusing and bring in much more money than was needed for the enforcement of what appeared to be solely a license regulatory act.

Since oleo retailers are far more numerous than the manufacturers and wholesalers, the law also sought to tax the retailers. The act was moved by the decision and it is up to the legislature to remedy it or depend upon higher courts for a reversal.

Utility Question

The portion of the utility regulation law which must be fixed to meet the constitutional objections upheld by Judge A. C. Hoppmann is that permitting the Public Service commission to determine when, in the public interest, a utility may be charged with the cost of any investigation concerning it.

Judge Hoppmann ruled that the discretionary power thus vested in the commission was a delegation of legislative power. The legislature could correct this situation by requiring all utilities to pay investigation costs without exemption by the Public Service commission.

Outstanding among the unsuccessful requests for laws to be considered at the special session was a high school state aid bill. Others were: Means of meeting a $100,000 deficit at the University of Wisconsin due to decreased enrollment; an appropriation for participation in the Chicago fair in 1932, and legislation to check bank robberies.

Bright Spots In Business

By the Associated Press

The nation's favorable trade balance in October was thrice what it was in September, amounting to $35,000,000. Cotton contributed $15,000,000 to the balance.

Two thousand men went back to jobs in Hudson Motor company's Detroit plant this week and 7,000 more will return in a fortnight.

For the first time in two years production schedules in several clothing factories in Rochester, N. Y., are speeded up with the prospect of work for 6,000 in next two weeks.

The furniture trade looks for marked improvement in business conditions with opening of winter furniture market in Chicago Jan. 2. Viewed by Martin J. Insull, president of the Middlewest Utilities system, as "authentic evidence of business revival," small unit industries served by the system are using more electric power than last year.

"Business from now on will be upgrade," says Senator Reed Smoot, chairman of the senate finance committee.

Encouraging signs of recovery have heartened the southwest. Heavy rains have renewed winter crops; the low price of feed enhances the profit of poultry raisers and dairymen. The Texas pecan crop is 24 times larger than last year. More men are at work in the Oklahoma oil fields.

M'LEAN TO WED SISTER OF SCREEN ACTRESS

Paris—(P)—Edward B. McLean, Washington newspaper publisher, will continue his divorce proceedings at Riga, his attorney said today, despite a restraining order issued yesterday by the District of Columbia Supreme court.

"When the papers are served on Mrs. McLean," said the attorney, "I am sure that the Washington court will recognize the principles of international law jurisdiction."

It was disclosed yesterday that in filing his action at Riga Mr. McLean deposited with the court there a formal statement that he intends to marry Miss Rose Douras, said to be a sister of Marion Davies, the American motion picture actress.

New York—(P)—Rose Douras, whom Edward B. McLean, Washington publisher, has announced he will marry, is a sister of Marion Davies, the famous motion picture star. They are daughters of former Magistrate Bernard J. Douras of New York. Miss Douras also has appeared in stage and screen productions.

Miss Douras formerly was the wife of George B. Van Cleave, writer. They were divorced when their daughter, Patricia, was about 7 years old. Miss Douras has been residing in Paris several years.

U. S. EDUCATION BODY UNLIKELY THIS SESSION

Congressmen Hold Time Unpropitious—Also Fear Political Angle

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1931, by Post Pub. Co.
Washington—Many of the members of congress who read the report of the national advisory committee on education said they would not touch the issue raised therein with a forty foot pole. Their view was that not only was the time unpropitious for increasing the number of federal departments, but that the fight for and against a federal department of education had merely reopened an old political sore with the representatives of Catholic education lined up in a minority report against the idea and the representatives of general education favoring it.

While the committee was appointed by President Hoover, acceptance of its report by him is not mandatory as the committee is wholly unofficial and its studies were financed by private funds. But the chances are Mr. Hoover will recommend the general principle advocated in the report of how the recommendations shall be carried out. The majority report is an apparent compromise between two points of view, those who favor centralization of certain supervisory powers in education in the federal government and those who want the whole educational process reserved to the state and city governments with the federal department of education merely a statistical gathering agency such as is the present office of education in the department of interior. By attacking the idea of federal control of education, the majority gives the district impression that any federal department would not interfere in local handling of education. If this is to be the case, the Catholic representatives ask, then what is the ultimate purpose of enlarging the present educational bureau and making it a department with a cabinet official at its head unless eventually the powers of the federal department are to be increased.

For years the question of a federal department of education has been agitated. In fact back in 1867 there was such a department and there never has been any real opposition to the idea of giving education a place at the president's cabinet table. The objection raised has always been as to how far such a department would go in interfering with parochial schools or how far it would endeavor to control state expenditures of funds and their administration by local officers. About two billion dollars a year is spent for education in America. It is the biggest single item in local government budgets. The theory of federal encroachment has been the subject of much debate. The committee's study by a prominent group of educators as has even been assembled is strongly insistent on continued local control, but the majority of the signers see an opportunity for valuable coordination work by the proposed federal department of education.

Minority View
"A federal department, headed by a secretary in the president's cabinet," say the two Catholic education representatives on the committee, the Right Rev. Edward A. Page and the Right Rev. George Johnson, "is of its very nature an administrative institution, and nothing that could be written into any act setting up such a department could prevent it from taking on administrative and directive functions in the course of time, even though it would not be endowed with them in the beginning."

The minority also argued that since the new secretary would be a political appointee he would respond to pressure and be amenable to the wishes of the political party in power.

The foregoing viewpoint is essentially what has been said on the stump in the debates on a federal department of education. The last two national conventions in their platform planks did not define the issue but the Democrats leaned away from the federal department idea, presumably because of their states' rights tradition.

When Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, himself a college president and noted educator, became secretary of the interior, he announced a program of helpfulness on the part of the office of education which is a bureau in his department. He stressed the need for coordination and his speech won applause from all groups. In fact it has been suggested that the precedent established by Mr. Hoover in making an education the head of the department of the interior would enable any president of the United States in the future to carry out the purposes of the majority report just rendered without any additional legislation or specific authority. This would suit most members of congress who feel the any issue involving a decision on the more question of religious education in the schools and kindred subjects is political dynamic and cuts into party lines.

Find All Wild Life Isn't Right In Hollywood, Calif.

BY JESSIE HENDERSON
Copyright 1931, by Cons. Press
Hollywood, Calif.—(CPA)—Not all the wild life in Hollywood is in the motion picture colony. A lot of it is in the hills which surround the cinema capital and some of it is in the still uninhabited hills which part of the Cinema capital surrounds. Within a 20-minute ride by car from Hollywood-blvd there were 52 wildcats trapped within the year. None of your wisecracks, either. These cats had never been in pictures.

Possibly because a series of long hot spells has dried up water in their usual haunts farther away, the wild animals have come down from the higher mountains to dwell in large numbers at present on the edge of Hollywood. The 52 wildcats were captured on a hill which is nearly surrounded by the town but most of the other animals venture less near the heart of the motion picture industry.

Upon the low mountains which rim Hollywood, and often well within sound of street car lines and traffic, there is just now an abundance of rabbits, quail and wild doves. A buck and three does recently invaded a local golf course at dawn, attracted by the beautiful grass which it costs the golf club several hundred dollars a month to maintain. Squirrels are almost as numerous in the hills as sparrows, and a pair of eagles live on a peak off the road which runs to Studio city and the Mack Sennett lot. Some horned toads have moved in from the desert for no good reason and equally for no good reason there is a plethora of skunks. Foxes and raccoons practically rub elbows with early morning hikers and the lonesome yelp of man a coyote looking down at the lights of Hollywood is heard these nights on the ridge.

APPROVE CONTRACTS FOR GAS PIPE LINES

Contracts for furnishing natural gas in Nashville, Tenn., the natural fuel to be used to enrich artificial gas, have been approved by the State Utilities commission, according to word received here. This gas will be furnished by the Wisconsin-Kentucky Oil and Gas Co. which has approximately 110 stockholders in Appleton. The contracts are between the Nashville Gas and Heat Co., the Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line Co., and the Kentucky Natural Gas Co., Kentucky, the source of the natural fuel. Connections for the gas lines will be completed by Jan. 1. The city of Nashville will utilize approximately 5,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily, it was announced.

STOPWATCH SHOWS WOMAN HAS LAST WORD IN SESSION

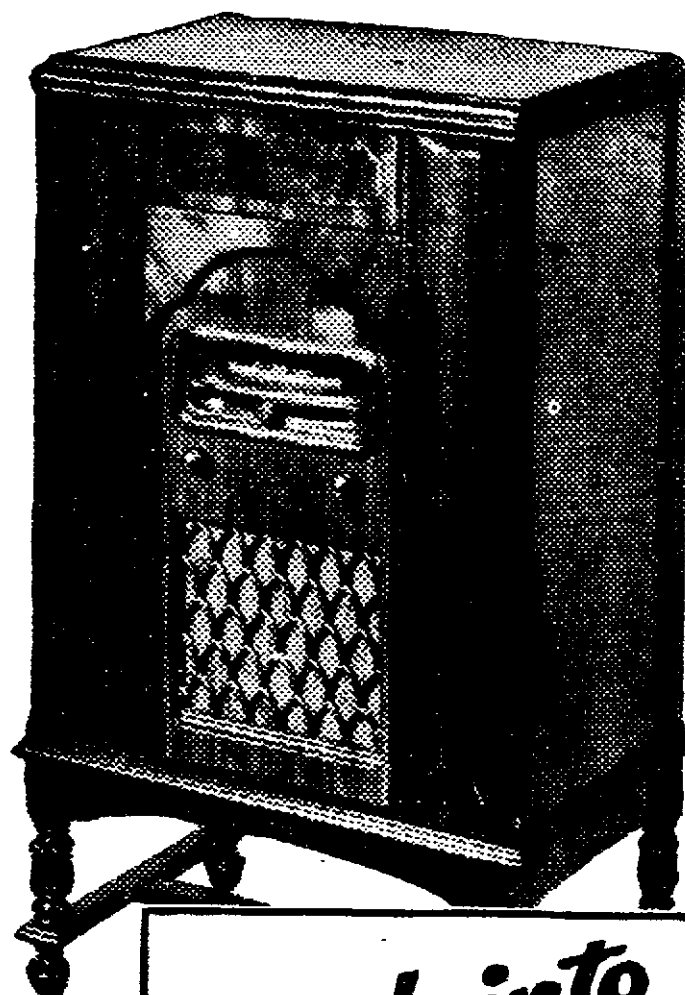

Chicago —(P)— Once again the woman has had the last word. Yesterday a stopwatch was used to record the length of time each member of the board of county commissioners talked during a one hour session at routine committee meetings.

And three of the four women members outlasted their ten male associates, 3 to 2.

The test was made at the suggestion of a male commissioner who begged that his name be withheld from publication for obvious reasons. The three leading women contributed 3.102 seconds against 2.085 for the ten men. The fourth woman, however, talked but 57 seconds and was just ahead of the last man on the list. He talked for 15 seconds, his remarks including one in which he asked if he could "get a word in."

THE MICHIGAN MOB

Three residents of Pontiac, Michigan, apparently active participants in a demonstration made because of prevailing economic conditions claim they were thereafter taken by armed men to a desolate spot, stripped and horse-whipped. These men claim they were accused of communistic tendencies and beaten for that reason but deny any political sympathy with things Moscow-vite.

This is another case of "the choking, sweltering, deadly and killing rule of no rule."

A mob is always wrong. Lawless turbulence, like a poisonous gas, destroys the good and the bad indifferently. If it spoke honestly it would admit its complete inability to execute justice.

A recent investigation of the execution of blacks in the South compiled by white men revealed indisputable proof that two blacks who were hanged were wholly innocent of wrongdoing and eleven others whose lives were snuffed out were probably innocent.

A mob is never right because a mob doesn't know how to proceed in the right direction.

In the first place its leaders are not worthy to be followed. They are themselves outlaws. Did anything ever come to the top of a stewing mass other than the scum?

A mob is blind, it is inconstant, it is forever duped by the cunning and unscrupulous and usually is willing to lick the hand of a tyrant if his voice is loud enough and his utterances sufficiently wild.

A mob seldom takes evidence. It is guided by rumor. And what makes rumor? Perhaps the greatest single ingredient of rumor is hatred.

There is no greater foe to everything good than a mob. Was there ever one that was not possessed of the devil? It is not unlikely that the beaten men spoke disparagingly of their country, of its form of government and of many other things held sacred by the great majority. But one's viewpoint may alter with the condition of the pantry or the peaked face of wife or child.

In a country which boasts of free speech assuredly there is nothing easier found than words. It is not unnatural for men who feel the pinch of want or the more painful twinge of fear and despair to "shoot off their mouths."

Indeed that is almost a national characteristic.

Regular army officers declare that the biggest beefers against the army are always the first to reenlist.

We are not living in the "alien and sedition" days. We are not living in a period of war where lips must be kept tight whatever the pain. We are living under circumstances where men must not be denied the privilege of expressing an opinion, however extreme it may seem to others, so long as it stops short of counseling others to acts of violence.

There are many desperate injustices that may be conjured up but there is hardly anything worse than punishing a man without giving him an opportunity to be heard. There is no difference in the treatment of these men, excepting in the extent of the punishment, from that credited to the madness of those who rule the land where communism is a faith.

It is the duty of government to protect from the mob just as it must from the bandit.

One is an outlaw no more than the other.

FORD WAGES

When the President called leading industrialists to the White House following the crash of October, 1929 and requested them to maintain their wage scales in spite of existing conditions Mr. Ford went them all one better by raising the minimum from six to seven dollars a day.

This raise cost him $35,000,000. He has found it necessary, or advisable, to go back to the old level of six dollars a day.

Mr. Ford's aim to increase the worker's share in the company's earnings is always praiseworthy. His idea to increase wages so as to increase the purchasing power of the country which in turn should increase production and profits must not be abandoned as without merit simply because in a world economic cataclysm it is not found practical.

And when Mr. Ford is subjected to criticism for the apparent ease with which he lays off tens of thousands of workers when he does not need them it must be borne in mind that when he uses them he is never stingy with his payroll.

So long as we are now moving into a period when we are going to hear a great deal in legislative halls and elsewhere concerning setting up reserves by industries for the use of employees during periods of unemployment, what shall be said of setting up reserves by employees from their own good wages when they have them, and for their own benefit?

The answer probably is that in this matter as well as in so many other matters involving both employer and employee, to put the load entirely upon the one or the other is not only unwise but a blindness to the certain consequences; whereas to even the load out upon them both is not only fairness and will be better for them both morally and spiritually, as well as materially, but create an actual partnership in responsibility which is quite indispensable in achieving the best results.

WHEN RESOURCES END!

Not quite like a mysterious finger writing a prophecy of doom, but rather ominous to some just the same, was a recent forecast in a middle western banking magazine that present reserves of high grade iron ore in the Lake Superior district will be entirely exhausted in less than 30 years if present rates of shipment prevail.

Of course, new deposits may be found in the rich Minnesota and Michigan ranges. If not, there are extensive low-grade reserves there which may, through some cheap new process, become commercially available. If not, there are still vast deposits elsewhere in America, and water transportation is still cheap. And yet—

The forecast, somehow, is disconcerting. For it points to a fact that we like to forget; the fact that there is to be, some day, an inevitable end to some of the natural resources of the earth. Oil, iron, coal—some day, soon or late, mankind will have used up the last of them, and there will be no possibility of getting any more.

In former ages, perhaps, this would not have mattered quite so much. But the civilization that is being developed now is founded, in a peculiarly intimate way, on just those commodities. Skyscrapers, railroads, automobiles, all the great machines that do the work of the world—they come back to this triumvirate inescapably.

To be sure, a cheap synthetic gasoline will be devised some day. Water power may replace coal very nicely. But who ever heard of a synthetic steel? Can you imagine a papier-mache skyscraper, or a locomotive built of cornstalk fibers?

Yet this approaching end of the great age of steel is a certainty which we need to look at occasionally. We need to be reminded that we are not building for eternity any more than the Babylonians did. The proudest city skyline will some day vanish. The most imposing manufacturing district will lose its smoke-cloud. These things constitute, not an everlasting framework for human activities, but an insubstantial back-drop which will presently be removed.

Yes, it is quite possible that the ingenuity of man will find something to replace that which is exhausted. Fate always sees the bright side.

ENGLAND MEANS BUSINESS

A motorist at London Sessions had his license suspended forever. He was an art dealer, Philip Henry Drummond, aged 53. Charges against him were of driving while under the influence of drink, driving dangerously and driving while disqualified from holding a license.

It was stated that there were three previous convictions for driving in a dangerous manner, two for being under the influence of drink while driving and two for driving while disqualified from holding a license.

In addition to being banned forever from driving, he was sentenced to six months in jail.

WHEN is a war? . . . to read the reports, you'd almost swear that Japan and China were having themselves a battle . . . but conflicting reports keep coming in from both sides until a fellow doesn't know whether there's a war, a rehearsal or whether it's just a deliberate attempt to make a monkey out of the League of Nations . . . so far it's been called a quarrel . . . personally it looks like a big poker game with the two nations involved trying to bluff each other out and the League walking around the table trying to do a big job as kibitzer . . . meantime, there are battles here and battles there in Manchuria and it makes good reading matter after you get tired of reading the stock market reports . . .

Meanwhile, Lefty Grove and the rest of the American baseball team in Japan are winning games and making dollars. They should worry about the war. It may be that Japan is waiting for the baseball series to finish before they devote complete attention to fighting China.

Incidentally, the Japanese have been cheering the Americans for playing good ball and booing their own players for not coming through.

Which is an attitude the American audience could never understand.

And R. H. L. is right when he says—speaking about Japan or China coming to America to borrow money—"Lissen, is this a war loan, or do we get it back?"

A scrambled sort of sheet, a younger brother to the still infant Ballyhoo, has been brought out. It's called Hullahaloo and it's a rather weak satire on the movie magazines. In fact, the doctors should hardly give Hullahaloo much of a chance to live. It was brought out to beat the McFadden group who were supposed to be bringing out a magazine by that name. Anyway, if this issue isn't a success, there won't be any more. We wouldn't advise you to buy one, incidentally.

Football keeps cropping up. Most people read last week where Harvard had told Ted Husing, noted radio announcer, that he couldn't broadcast any more games from the Harvard Stadium because he called the playing of Barry Wood, Harvard's super athlete and student, "putrid."

But the news leaks out that Barry Wood WAS playing in putrid fashion in that game. Harvard, however, has a winning team this year and is taking its football players seriously for a change. Husing, incidentally, has apologized.

Grandi is coming to America. Grandi, Tille, not Gandhi. This gent works for Mussolini and wears pants. Incidentally, the anti-Pacifists in New York are planning to give Grandi quite a reception when he landed yesterday.

Lock up the treasury, Andrew, these furnurers are slicker'n a whistle. They talk disarmaments and ask for the combination to the safe.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest

UNCHANGED

In the early days of struggle when the home was small and new
We cherished little visions of the things we'd some day do.
We found our joy in friendship and we found
our strength in care,
And we found our tears in sorrows every family
has to bear.
But, my darling, looking backward, do you ever
think it strange,
Although fame and fortune alter, joy and sorrow
never change?

Here we are still looking forward after five and twenty years.
To the same glad little visions, to the self-same smiles and tears.
Finding pleasure where we found it in the days of long ago,
Fretting still o'er disappointment, needing friends
to share our woes.
Hoping still to see our children safe from hurt
and cruel shame,
With the home a little richer, but its problems
still the same.

Once we thought we'd cease to worry and perhaps in future years
We should find some source of pleasure free from sorrow's signs and tears.
But the month has never happened that we have not had to share
A common family burden or a neighbor's weight of care.
Time may alter fame and fortune and hang treasures on the wall,
But life's duties, joys and sorrows never seem to change at all.

Looking Backward

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Wednesday, Nov. 21, 1906

A definite step had been taken toward establishing a municipal court in Outagamie county with the appropriation of the county board and it was expected that at the next session of the state legislature, a bill would be passed allowing a municipal court in this county.

A marriage license had been issued to Frank E. Nolan, Outagamie, and Mary L. Gorman, Appleton.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Aker were spending a few days with friends and relatives at Algoma. Miss Marie Aker, 517 Washington-st., was hostess to the members of the S and S club the previous evening.

L. A. Hanson, a man here that evening for Sen. Francis J. Davis, and other western points to look over the land and a view to moving his farm to here.

The Sunbury club was to meet the following afternoon at the home of Mrs. Frank Patten, 425 North-st.

TEN YEARS AGO

Wednesday, Nov. 16, 1921

New construction work on secondary roads in Outagamie county was recommended by the county road and bridge committee to the county board at its morning session that day.

Application for a marriage license had been made to the county clerk by Webster Schickel, Appleton, and Clara Lamman, Silchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Lange left that day for Kaukasium to attend the Finnish wedding anniversary of Mr. Lange's sister, Mrs. J. M. Ockenfels.

Mrs. Aurora Becker and daughter, Emma, spent the preceding week with Chicago and Racine friends.

Nicholas Simon, Appleton, had been awarded a patent for a new process of forming blocks of cheese, according to word received from Milwaukee.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

LONG FEVER AND SUFFOCATIVE CATARRH

The old fashioned name for what we now call lobar or pleuro-pneumonia was lung fever, and I think that was a more expressive name for it than the present name. It is the fever, the damage to and poisoning of the whole body by the pneumonia germs or their toxins, and the disabling of or impairment of the lung breathing, that makes acute infectious inflammation of the lung so grave an illness.

There is another type of pneumonia, commonly called broncho-pneumonia, formerly called capillary bronchitis and still earlier suffocative catarrh. In this illness suffocation, inability to get enough air, is the serious aspect and general systemic poisoning is comparatively slight.

Labor pneumonia or lung fever occurs usually in vigorous young adults, develops sharply with a chill, and is characterized by high fever which continues for a week or 10 days and then passes off all in a few hours and the patient is recovering—the quick drop of temperature in eight or twelve hours is called the "crisis," but that doesn't signify a sharp, decisive termination of fever. The crisis in pneumonia is in itself a very favorable sign, for it spells complete victory over the germs and their poisons by the patient's immunity forces.

Broncho-pneumonia, or capillary bronchitis occurs usually in feeble or sick persons, young children, aged folk, and develops insidiously, with little fever or increase in temperature if there is already fever, and it runs an indefinite and irregular course, without a crisis.

Lobar pneumonia, as the name implies, is inflammation of one or more whole lobes of the lung. Sometimes one lobe on each side is involved—"double pneumonia." Sometimes the doctor examining the chest feels or hears a friction rub of pleurisy along with the lung inflammation—"pleuro-pneumonia."

Broncho-pneumonia occurs in little patches scattered thruout both lungs, not in a circumscribed area, the more in the bases or lower parts of the lung. It is more a bronchitis than it is a lung inflammation. It commonly develops upon or from extension of ordinary acute bronchitis, as in measles or whooping cough or in the acute bronchitis of any feeble invalid. Perhaps mere long lying on the back in bed predisposes to broncho-pneumonia.

When the patient is weakened by illness and it is well to see that the bedridden patient is turned now on one side, now on the other, to rest. Now here comes one of my peculiar notions—I may be all wrong about this, but I believe my own belly breathing exercises gives me a big advantage over the ordinary sufferer. In case I should develop broncho-pneumonia, for this little belly breathing stunt (which takes only a few moments when you're getting ready to go to sleep) improves the circulation and nutrition down there in the deep bases of my lungs. I think I invite all the older girls and boys to join me in a belly breathing "vigil." Just stamp a stamped addressed envelope and say you want to try the B. B. exercise.

QUESTION AND ANSWERS

Exotic Sore

Did you ever hear of a milk blister turning red? (Mrs. G. R.)

Answer: I never even heard of a milk blister.

Chronic Middle Ear Disease

I have had a running ear for nine years. I have consulted six ear specialists, and none has done anything for me. Does the pus from this ear abscess go down in the stomach? Can it reach the brain or any other part of the body? (A. L.)

Answer: Any pus that drains thru the eustachian tube to the throat, and so goes into the stomach is harmless. There is always the possibility that the infection may enter the brain cavity eventually. It would do no harm too use these drops night and morning regularly.

Boric acid 10 grains
Pure alcohol One ounce

Warm the vial in hot water, and drop two drops in ear each night and morning. (If your druggist cannot sell you this solution, I can do no more about it.)

The Dose for a Child
If five grains is the dose of calcium lactate for an adult what would be the dose for an 11 year old child? (Mrs. M. C. M.)

Answer—For example let us take a simpler problem. If a pound of potato is the dose for a person weighing 150 pounds, the dose for a person weighing 75 pounds would be one-half pound of potato, provided they both remained quietly in bed or in a rocker on the porch. But if the 75 pound person dances a good deal, plays hard, runs, swims, grows and everything, then perhaps a dose of three-fourths of a pound of potato would be right.

The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

AS Clowry, on the parachute, dropped down and down he looked real cute. Of course he was a bit afraid and hung on mightily tight. Thought he, so far I'm safe and sound and I soon will be on the ground. I hope the other Tynites, in the gyro, land all right.

And, up above, the others gazed at Clowry. They were almost dazed to think that he'd had nerve enough to jump out in the air. Said Scouty, "Gee, we must not have about him any more. He's brave." He had a lot of confidence, or else just didn't care.

The autogyro pilot cried, "I think I'd better end this ride. What say we join we Clowry? He'll be down there all alone. From here his landing looks real neat. Yes, sir! He landed on his feet. He's lucky that he didn't crash and maybe break a bone."

"All right, let's drift down very slow," said Scouty. "What I'd like to know is how near you can land to him. We'll find out if we wait." And then the pilot looked around and started dropping right straight down. The autogyro pilot made it possible. "Was great."

"Hello, there! Little Clowry cried. "My chute jump didn't hurt my hide." And, while they all shook hands with him, they heard the pilot say, "Here comes a fine-looking man. I'm looking for a partner. I can." And in about an instant he was in his merry van.

"Say! He was right!" one Tynite cried. "Perhaps we'd better run and hide." "Oh, no!" said Scouty. "I am going to stay right on this spot." The funny man ran up and looked. "Oh, you ain't got no need to hide. I am a very friendly sort. My name is Double Knot." (Copyright, 1931, E. Double Knot, Inc.)

(The Tynmites do Double Knot a big favor in the next story.)

Barbs

Ten thousand exhibitors in Africa recently ate raw beef in a celebration, and enjoyed it. It probably was bulky.

Spenders, says a columnist, are waiting for the turn. What will they do after turning the other cheek?

Anyway, feeling like a million dollars is a lot of feeling.

Charles Curtis is silent on his political plans. Probably waiting for the Republicans to sing "Waltz Me Around Again, Charlie."

A Bystander In Washington

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—They say that when Gifford Pinchot, governor of Pennsylvania, goes fishing he is not satisfied merely to catch trout. They must be taken with a barbless hook or a dry fly.

And the oftener the fish gets away, the more determined he is to catch it.

Perhaps he plays the game of politics in much the same way. The other day he came down to Washington and made a round of calls upon some of the Republican independents in the senate. He went to see Brookhart of Iowa, Frazier of North Dakota, Couzens of Michigan and Borah of Idaho. He also visited the new Democratic "Progressive" senator, Costigan of Colorado.

Although neither Pinchot nor any of the senators would discuss what they talked about, political observers were quick to see in the visit an element of presidential politics.

Brookhart strengthened this belief by "choked down" as a Pinchot supporter. The Iowa has advanced the Republican as a candidate of the "Republican Progressives" for the presidential nomination in opposition to President Hoover.

Perhaps there's a reason why these senators are so reticent about what they talked about, political observers have a way of being quite regular around presidential election time for all their "insurgency" at other times.

They are politicians as well as "Progressives." And their knowledge of political history in this country is extensive.

Probably they think that everything points to Hoover's renomination unless, as Rutherford Hayes did, the President declines a second term or voluntarily retires from the field.

They remember what happened in 1912. Taft's defeat was more or less evident, but he was given the Republican nomination because he wanted it.

And they also know that in the last election, despite the fact that Senator Blaine was off of the reservation and Senator LaFollette refused to endorse either candidate, Wisconsin went for Hoover.

Eye Those Choice Jobs
Perhaps another reason why they are so reticent is because they hold some choice jobs in the senate which they might lose should a third party be born.

Such a party might do no more than split the Republican organization, throwing the election to the Democrats. If so, then their choice committee assignments might be lost.

After all, the reputation of the "Progressives" in the past has been that of opposing more than anything else. And so long as they can do that probably they are happiest.

A barbless hook or a dry fly might be all right for fishing. But in politics—it's a different story.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY WILLIAM GAINES

New York—Lenore Ulric has no patience with the stars when it comes to the exploitation of sex.

She says sex is a legitimate dramatic theme which must be approached in all frankness: "Without it, what? Not only no theater, but no life."

We were sitting backstage—she, her husband, Sidney Blackmer, Jane Ferrell, her companion of 15 years, and myself—at a rehearsal to polish the rough spots off Miss Ulric's new play.

Blackmer has the male supporting role (he's been the star's husband two and a half years).

Miss Ulric has amazing vitality and appeal. When she speaks, you are held in fascination.

Defies Censors

Some of Miss Ulric's comments concerning censorship are cherished by the liberal followers of the drama.

Here in her adopted New York, when a censor from the police department found cause to blush over "The Harem," she told him emphatically:

"I won't change a word and I won't add a bead!"

Script and costume remained unchanged.

She doesn't even talk to the "defenders" of the stage when, whenever there is an organized movement for some sort of supervision, she is willing to conciliate with the proposal that the stage be "censored from within."

"In this year, 1931," she says, "there is no reason for the stage people as a group, or for any other group to suppose that they are in position to tell the public what it shall or shall not see upon the stage."

"The public has had ample time to become sophisticated. If it hasn't achieved that goal, at least it has become independent enough to know what it wants to do with its evenings."

Nary A Flop

The person who is talking, you must bear in mind, is an actress who never has appeared in a flop since she became a lead player.

She has been in weak plays, yes (in fact, the brainy critics tell us, she never, has had a really first rate play), but she never failed to make her vehicle draw for less than a season.

The movies have not been able to catch her peculiar charm—which is the movies lose, not Lenore's. She constantly is busy on the stage and makes more money than most of the Hollywood great ones.

She has to keep police reserves at the stage door to make possible her nightly passages to her car—what with such a throng of admirers waiting to greet her.

Miss Ulric was born in New Ulm, Minn., and spoke German until she was 7. She got her start in stock in Milwaukee.

"I have done everything except burlesque," she says, "and I'm sorry I didn't have a chance at that."

While King Carol's brother was eloping, Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson was opening a new transatlantic telephone service with Rumania. He probably urged disarmament.

Descendants of proud old families are decadent. Well, they've been descending for several hundred years.

CRISIS REVEALS JAP PREMIER HAS LITTLE AUTHORITY

Shows Cabinet Here Does
Not Control War and Navy
Movements

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—There seems to be a marked difference between the Japanese scheme of government and our own.

One of the most startling revelations that followed the invasion of Manchuria, from their point of view, was that the Japanese ministers of war and navy could wage little wars of their own without heed of the views of the premier and the rest of the cabinet.

For many days the State Department here found itself completely added by the fact that Premier Wakatsuki and Foreign Minister Shidehara were being constantly overridden by the military. The premier and the foreign minister, regarded here as men of peace, made promises that were broken by the Japanese war office.

United States officials had a bad time trying to determine who actually was in control at Tokio. They had to deal with the Japanese foreign office, of course, and it began to appear that very often communications from Shidehara simply didn't mean anything.

The contrast between what can happen in the Japanese administration and America's was plainly demonstrated when President Hoover recently publicly scored the "big navy" group in the Navy Department for objecting to reduced budgets. The poor admirals weren't even permitted what has always been with them a most sacred prerogative—the right to cry out for more money and more ships. The secretary of the navy could only look embarrassed, keep quiet and yearn for peace.

Japan, it is believed here, has the only government in the world in which the military members of the cabinet can ignore the policies of the civilian members. The emperor, it appears, is the only one who can exercise any control over them. Of course, no one in Japan admitted that there was a real war on. What Japanese soldiers were doing in Chinese territory was described as "troop movements," "minor protective measures," or something like that.

In the early days of the Manchurian trouble the failure of the State Department to invoke the Kellogg treaty was widely commented upon, for at the time of the Russo-Chinese Manchurian row two years ago, Secretary Stimson had demanded that China withdraw her troops from the Chinese Eastern Railway before negotiations began. The only official explanation was that any American declaration might then hamper the efforts of Baron Shidehara and the peace group in the Japanese government.

Recent policy, disclosed when this government refused to join the members of the League of Nations council in a stiff note to Japan, appears to have been dictated by a desire not to embarrass anyone at all, especially the State Department. Fear that the Japanese might refuse to cooperate at the February disarmament conference if their feelings were hurt has been an influential factor.

Japanese military and naval officials are in most cases descendants of the old feudal caste and have a large following. The late Premier Hara found how dangerous it was to oppose the military in such situations as the present one. When Japanese troops were in Siberia he promised that they would be withdrawn, only to be defied by the military group, which kept them there. A young Japanese, imbued with what he considered patriotism, assassinated Hara on the theory that he was a traitor to his country.

Baron Shidehara, the present foreign minister, has always publicly urged a conciliatory policy toward China, and the State Department has had faith in his motives as well as those of Japanese Ambassador Debuch.

Teach Child Respect For Given Name

BY ANGELO PATRI

Choosing a name for the baby is not always easy. The family all expect to be honored and as there is a limit to the length of a name, a nice discrimination must be made so that nobody's feelings are hurt.

In saving the feelings of the immediate family do be careful not to run the risk of ruining the child's feelings upon him such a title as to make him hide behind a screen of initials all the days of his life. There was a boy in our class who had such a name that he had to trash every boy in the place before he could wear it in anything that resembled give. He was known as A-to-Z.

Give the child a good strong name. It is not wise to select names of great statesmen and heroes. Nor fancy names out of novels. Unless one is of the family of Vere de Vere, Vere de Vere is not a good choice. Nor is Marmaduke, nor Percy, nor Cleopatra, nor Violet. You are taking a big chance. Fortune is against you. The great never live again and the child you call Violet may, like the one who used to live on our block, turn out to be a hefty creature.

Give a child a sturdy name, one flavored with the life of plain folks. You will find that these folk-names derive from an aristocracy as fine as any Marmaduke or Monnomerey. Take John. You cannot find any better name than John, the beloved, like Peter and James, too. And Daniel, George, Franklin, Smith, Mary, Anne, Margaret — the list is long and interesting.

A child can live up to a worthy name. A girl named Margaret has something to stand up for. You cannot imagine a Margaret fainting at a mouse or dodging at a crisis.

Margaret will hold up her head and carry through just as Martha has and always will. Put that quality into the name you give your child and you give him and her, something worth while. You see, the meaning that lies in a name is its meaning for you. That meaning is going to color the character of your child because his name touches the spirit of him. His name is one of the intimate things about himself that he cherishes with reserve and secrecy. He does not like to say his name aloud in the market place. Nor does he like you to discuss it directly. You can talk about it indirectly through its history, and he will sit enthralled, but do not make it personal lest he leave you in wrath.

I cannot promise that if you give a child a good name he will be good by virtue of that name. He will have one more chance to be good. He will have one more bulwark against littleness, meanness and that sort of thing. He will have a spiritual hold, inexplicable save to those who know that will grow through the years until his name is what you created it to mean.

Select a good name. Let the idea of it seep into the child's mind. Do your work indirectly so that he learns to respect, then cherish, then reveres his name for the symbol of truth and decency and uprightness it must come to be.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of The Appleton Post-Crescent, enclosing stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

ALUMNI TO MEET The Fox River Valley alumni association of Phi Kappa Tau, social fraternity, will meet at Hotel North-corn Tuesday evening. A dinner will precede a general discussion.

The Story of Sue

MARGERY HALE
© 1929 by NEA Service, Inc.

AND with the sound of the glass breaking and the low splash of liquid there came a scream. A terrifying, blood-curdling thing. Then hurrying footsteps that seemed to be moving through a maze of pain. Footsteps that had to go on though they were torturous and terrible.

As though the spell had ended, Sue threw back the blankets and sat erect. She wasn't afraid now. The shadow that had pursued her had turned away. It was fleeing.

She knew that Jack stirred. Turned. Sank back again. He couldn't waken. The sickening sweet odor must have been some sort of chemical designed to make people sleep.

Sue slipped out of bed, crossed the floor, to the balcony, down which the man was going.

Behind her she could hear voices and footsteps. Harry came running into the room.

"This way," she said. "Down there."

"But Jack—where's Jack?" Harry asked in the darkness.

"I'll tell you later. The man's going down. . . . Can't we get him?"

Harry picked up the telephone and gave the police station number.

Sue snapped on the light by the bed. Then she sat down by Jack and shook him gently.

As though coming back from a long sleep, he opened his eyes, rubbed them, breathed deeply.

He would have closed his eyes again but Sue slipped one arm under his head and shook him again. As though struggling against some invisible force he opened them, wider this time.

Sue was aware of the lingering scent of the sweet, sickish smell. She knew that they ought to get out of the room.

The windows, she noticed now, with the exception of the balcony door, were closed. The strange man had evidently closed them in order to insure the full effect of his mysterious drug.

Corrine, who had followed Harry into the room, still stood inside the door, her eyes dark and wide with almost childish fright.

She saw Sue's eyes go to the windows, sniffed the odor, and was across the room, throwing the windows wide, letting the night wind rush in and stir the curtains and blow the scene away.

Jack sat up then.

"What happened?" he asked.

"There was a scream, a terrible thing. Sue, are you all right?" He swung out of bed and grasped her lightly. "I kept dreaming that I was in a place where the flowers had a terrible death-like odor. And I couldn't get up. What happened?"

Harry was giving his message to the police and he turned to him, waiting until he had swung up.

"It was a man, a tall dark shadow, and he came closer. . . ."

Sue began. "I couldn't move, but I did get the blankets over my head. And then he threw something towards me. . . ."

Instinctively all eyes turned to the place where he had thrown the glass and liquid.

Then Corrine let out a stifled, startled scream.

PUMICE STONE KEEPS ELBOWS, KNEES LOVELY

BY ALICIA HART
Some of the most beneficial cosmetics you possibly can use are least expensive. A pumice stone, for instance, costs little and is extraordinarily beneficial.

The benefit a pumice stone does elbows and knees you probably know. If you go in for perfect grooming you should use it also on your heels, the sides of your feet, and the bottom of them. After your daily bath this keeps them soft and prevents callouses. Dry your feet carefully, then take the pumice and gently rub it back and forth over your heels. Don't do it long enough to make the skin tender; you only want to remove dead and drying skin. Now pumice the bottoms and inner sides of your feet. Callouses are due largely to neglect. They are composed of dead tissues which become hard, and later on, sore. Pumice stones are the answer to the callous problem. You may also soften corns by pumicing the tops of them. Be extremely careful not to irritate the flesh around them and when you feel the slightest twinge in the corn, you'll know that you have pumiced enough for that day.

Your feet should be pink and white and soft. They are subjected to constant pressure from shoes and if you allow the pressure to harden the flesh, trouble starts. No one can be beautiful if feet hurt and ache, so get busy with your pumice stone (which costs only a few cents at any drug store) and you'll notice not only that your feet are more comfortable but that they are truly as lovely as the rest of your skin.

If you haven't watched your elbows and knees they probably are harsher than the rest of the skin on your body. Knees may not seem important at this time of year, but they suddenly become vitally important when it's time to don a bathing suit once more. If you pumice them a little after your bath, they won't become discolored and rough.

Your elbows show more than ever when it's the "evening dress season." See that they are soft and white. Pumice them after they have been thoroughly "scrubbed" and then apply a little cream to them, and on all night. When pumice, the hard little callouses which form at the edge of your fingernails, you'll discover that these parts of your body really need little else besides a good cream occasionally.

WE WOMEN
By Virginia Vane
NO PITY FOR BOY WHO SELECTS SELFISH GOLD-DIGGER AS TRUE LOVE
Dear Miss Vane: I have recently become very much interested in a girl whom I could love if she would only treat me better. I am at a loss to understand her attitude toward me. She is mean on every occasion, always telling me of the good times other boy friends give her, and never seems to want to give me a date. And yet she has no real boy friend. She gave the last one up because he wasn't generous enough, she told me. I don't seem to see any real rivals in the field, yet I'm right out in the cold myself. She is very pretty, always out for a good time and I'd like to know what to do to make her like me better.

ANXIOUS C. W.
That young woman isn't going to like you better or anybody else in the world better than herself—which is the chief trouble with her. If you expect her to fall after the way she's acted, you're more of an optimist than most of us dare to be nowadays.

Personally I don't think you ought to spend your time hanging around her and hoping that some miracle will soften that hard heart of hers. It's boys like you who encourage girls like her—and they ought not to be allowed to live, much less encouraged. Because you're poor sap enough to stand for the way she treats you—because you're so anxious to live up to her standards that you are probably even now spending more money than you can afford in order to give her the right sort of good time—because, in short, you remain oblivious of her faults and conscious only of her somewhat doubtful charms—she will go on successfully gold-digging and being selfish and inconsiderate as long as she lives.

There ought to be a law against your kind of good-nature so that girls like your innamorata might have to get wise to themselves and undergo a course of self-improvement. Nothing will induce them to change so long as they can find nice obliging young fellows who will pay for their whims, suffer their snubs, and, just out of sheer masculine idiocy, continue to be in love with them.

If you faced facts my good man, you'd realize that the young woman you describe is not a charming character—she isn't the sort of lady any man would want to annex permanently. She's spoiled and rather rude—and she gets most of her effects by being so thoroughly offensive that she baffles her innocent victims.

MY NEIGHBOR Says —

Potatoes will be made mealy if allowed to stand 20 minutes in hot water before they are put into the bake oven.

Ferns require light and air. They grow best when placed near a window where they do not get direct sunlight.

To remove wrinkles from a transparent velvet gown, hang it in a bathroom after filling the tub with hot water. The steam from the water will remove all wrinkles.

Mince parsley and onion added to cream soups improves the flavor. Dried celery leaves may also be used to flavor soups.

Cornmeal used in puddings or mush should be thoroughly mixed in a little cold water before hot water is added. It will not turn lumpy.

If the fat from steak or pork should catch fire when it is cooking, do not attempt to smother the meat. Turn out the gas and sprinkle flour over the burning fat.

Save the skin and fat of a turkey. It makes a delicious soup. You make it by boiling the skin and fat in water for several hours.

Pimples Caused Disfigurement. Very Painful. Cuticura Healed.

"The trouble began with pimples on my forehead and then spread to my nose and chin. They were red and inflamed and itched very much. They caused disfigurement and were very painful. For eight months I was tormented to death with them.

"I tried several other remedies but they all failed to help me. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in less than a month I could see an improvement and in about two months I was completely healed, after using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment." PAIN like INDIGESTION

WHAT many call indigestion is really often nothing but excess acid in the stomach. The stomach acids have been overproduced, and this is the cause of the pain. You feel distress when you have the pain. Two things to remember there is often acute indigestion need not suffer when you know what to do.

The stomach is an alkali which neutralizes acids instantly. The base of the stomach is the mucus which is secreted by the stomach. The mucus is the base of the stomach. The mucus is the base of the stomach. The mucus is the base of the stomach.

APPLETON, WISCONSIN

"COTTON BELT" MERGER STILL HANGS IN AIR

Majority of Stockholders Hope Union With Southern Pacific Is Effected

BY CHARLES F. SPEARE
Copyright, 1931, by Cons. Press
Wall Street, New York — If the experience of the St. Louis-Southern railway, popularly known as the "Cotton Belt," is a fair example of the delays that attend railroad consolidation it will be another 25 years before general progress in the unification of American steam carriers is effected.

The "Cotton Belt," which runs south of St. Louis and covers a portion of eastern Texas, has been wooed by several suitors in the transportation field in recent years. It might be said that it has gone through the phase of "companionate marriage" with the Kansas City Southern, which divorced it. Later it found a congenial mate in a New York corporation that was supposedly interested in real estate but eventually turned up as the holder of 13,750 shares of its preferred stock, for which it paid a fancy price and afterwards the penalty that comes from buying something not in one's own line.

In July 1930 the "Cotton Belt" had a real suitor and one whose attentions were based on the benefits that might accrue from a legal union. The Southern Pacific Co. had been looking at this road, which perfectly supplements its own lines in Texas, for many years.

Considered Before
While he was alive, Julius Kruttschnitt, the operating head of the Southern Pacific, made several surveys of the "Cotton Belt" and, long before L. F. Loree thought he ought to have this former Gould road, the Southern Pacific had quietly discussed its purchase with interested parties.

The basis for the offer made last year by the Southern Pacific to holders of the common and preferred shares of the "Cotton Belt" was looked upon at the time as a liberal one. As market prices have gone it proved to be an accident of fortune for the $5 per cent of the St. Louis line who accepted it. It was not such a good piece of business, however, for the Southern Pacific but it had made its offer and is standing by it. The opposition consists of a small group of minority stockholders who have been buzzing around in the affairs of the "Cotton Belt" for some years and have objected to practically every proposal that has been made for sale or merger. This was to the advantage of the majority stockholders in the road up to the time when the Southern Pacific appeared on the scene and requested from the interstate commerce commission the right to acquire control of the property.

Back of the objection now being raised to the purchase by the Southern Pacific of the "Cotton Belt" is the influence of a competing system, namely the Missouri Pacific. Since this road passed into the hands of the Van Sweringen interests it has become an even greater competitor of the Southern Pacific for business originating in the stronghold of Southern Pacific's traffic territory, the state of California, than in former days. Owning the Texas Pacific, which is now a part of the Missouri Pacific system—a combination by the way that has been approved of by the interstate commerce commission which questions the legality of the same kind of arrangement between the Southern Pacific and "Cotton Belt"—the Van Sweringens have been able to gain control at the El Paso gateway

SEVERAL HUNDRED PEOPLE OFFER TO SELL THEIR BLOOD

Milwaukee (P)—Blood for sale! That is what several hundred persons offered when the Milwaukee County Medical association this week established a registry of blood donors. The association seeks to systematize the procedure of getting blood for transfusions.

A line many yards long formed when physicians registered and made tests on persons offering blood. Their names were filed and they will be called as needed by the city's hospitals.

Among those willing to contribute blood were many unemployed. A man of 55 registered and asked for blanks for two daughters. One young woman proved of particular value to the medical profession. She once suffered from infantile paralysis, and she offered not only blood but spinal fluid.

Ordinarily $25 is paid to the donor of blood for a single transfusion.

of a large part of the traffic moving up the Mississippi Valley to the St. Louis gateway. It has been necessary as a defensive measure for the Southern Pacific to have an ally in this same territory, or else lose the high rate traffic which it originates on the Pacific coast.

It is difficult to see, therefore, why there should be objection to Southern Pacific control of the "Cotton Belt" if control of the Missouri Pacific and all of its leased and operating roads is permitted the interests which already have a network of lines centering on the St. Louis gateway.

Next June the "Cotton Belt" has about $21,000,000 of first consolidated mortgage 4's maturing. An evidence of how fearful holders of these bonds are that they may go in default is the current price of 60. Other bonds of the road are also selling at quotations that anticipate difficulties in making payments next year. In this financial dilemma the Southern Pacific with its strong credit stands willing to protect the bondholders, even though it has already suffered a heavy depreciation on the "Cotton Belt" stock purchased and has no income from the preferred shares, which were paying $5 annually when the Southern Pacific took them in.

If the proposed union of the "Cotton Belt" and the Southern Pacific falls another small independent line will be left to its own resources. This is a serious matter in this day of low return on railroad property investments.

Milwaukee (P)—Wisconsin's sweetest convention, the annual session of the Wisconsin Bee Keepers' association, will be held here Dec. 3.

Problems of marketing honey as well as the technique of bee culture will be discussed. Among speakers who will talk to the bee keepers are C. D. Adams, Madison, member of the department of agriculture and markets; John Kneser, Hales Corners; Clarence Gwin, and Mykola Haydak, University of Wisconsin; E. L. Chambers, state entomologist; and H. B. Parks, chairman of the American Honey Institute.

A. H. Seefeldt, Kewaskum, is president of the association.

SEE FOUR MILLION BUSHEL INCREASE IN POTATO CROP

Favorable Fall Weather Is Given Credit for Improvement

Madison (P)—As a result of an exceedingly favorable fall weather condition, estimates of the Wisconsin potato crop have been raised four million bushels during the past two months, a bulletin released by the state department of agriculture and markets said today.

The present estimate is placed at 24,888,000 bushels as compared with the 1930 crop of 20,888,000 and the five year average of 20,500,000 the department said.

The crop for this season has been estimated as of excellent quality. Prices on potatoes are the lowest in years, the average price on October 15 being 10 cents a bushel as compared with 12 cents a year ago. The potato is Wisconsin's leading cash crop.

As in Wisconsin, production for the United States has also shown an increase. The average for the country as a whole is estimated at 345,000,000 bushels as compared to 343,000,000 bushels in 1930 and the five year average of 337,000,000 bushels.

The corn ear worm which does such serious injury to tomatoes, sweet corn, pop corn and field corn in Wisconsin this summer is the well-known pest of the South. E. L. Chambers, entomologist of the department of agriculture and markets reports.

The corn ear worm does much damage in most cases only the worm is found as the source of the corn borer's habit of practicing on any ear of corn.

The corn ear worm which comes to Wisconsin from the South has caused considerable damage to roses, chrysanthemums, carnations and geraniums in some sections of the state. As the insects are killed by cold winters, infestation depends upon the egg-laying activities of moths which fly north during the warm weather.

Many persons have mistaken the corn ear worm for the broad European corn borer, the entomologist said, but the two worms are entirely different in appearance.

The full grown corn ear worm is nearly two inches long and while it varies greatly in color, it is usually brownish to greenish and marked with alternating light and dark stripes running lengthwise of the body. It usually receives its injury to the ears and feeds upon the tips.

of the ears in most cases. The moth is a light grayish brown with a wing spread of about an inch and a half.

Forest plantations are making a decided increase in the state at the present time according to W. W. Morris, in charge of growth study investigations of the Wisconsin land inventory.

The plantations on which information has been collected thus far show that the trees grow the first ten feet in eleven years, making a growth of a foot a year at the end of the seventh year. At the end of the twelfth year, the growth is about two feet annually.

At the end of a hundred years the possible production from thinning and final cuttings of a planted stand of spruce or white pine under forest management will total $25.25 net profit per acre based on a value of $1 a cord and $15 per thousand for saw logs, Morris said.

Bankers, doctors, lawyers, judges, lumbermen and the governors of six states are on the Thanksgiving and Christmas cheese mailing list of the Bell Brothers Cheese company at Rolling Plains, Wis.

The factory makes a specialty of French cheese and sells the bulk of its product by mail to residents of every state in the Union except Rhode Island.

Some of the fancy cheese is even shipped to Alaska, six of the 11 Christmas boxes of cheese going there last year.

Hoerning Zimmerman Fight May Be Big Feature Of Amateur Card

BOYS STAGED GREAT BATTLE AT OSHKOSH

Bob Goodrick and Babe Murphy Will Show in the Curtain Raiser

A FIGHT that started at Oshkosh a couple weeks ago will be resumed here Thursday night at Armory G when Elmer Zimmerman of Ford du Lac and Ed Hoerning of New London clash in one of the bouts on the amateur program sponsored by Ony Johnson post of the legion.

The two boys battled for a fair three well at Oshkosh for three rounds and the fight was called a draw. They started the fourth round at a merry clip and then Hoerning missed his calculations and landed a low blow that gave the fight to Zimmerman on a foul.

Neither was satisfied with the way the bout terminated and March master H. W. Miller, jumped at the opportunity to get them here for Appleton fans.

Hoerning has fought around Fond du Lac and Oshkosh for some time and is a real battler. He has won practically every bout, a couple of which were staged here but which the fans probably don't remember.

Two more Appleton fighters on Thursday's show will be Bob Goodrick who will be making his debut in fistie circles. He is booked to meet Babe Murphy over in "the world." Goodrick has been working out with Art West and other local boys Murphy also will be making his first or second appearance in the roped arena. The boys will hit the beam at 12:30.

Thursday's windup show will see Ted Trauring of Manitowoc and Joe Bieble of Oshkosh fighting for the state 120 pound championship Hank Rasmussen of Appleton and Bob Worthington are scheduled in the semi, and Ross Rankin, Appleton and Johnny Kalous, Berlin, in one of the other fights.

The bouts will begin at 8:30.

Sports Question Box

Q.—Should a team playing against an evenly matched opponent kick on fourth down when it has the ball in midfield with one yard to go for fourth down?

A.—Most coaches think it is safer.

Q.—Is the third baseman permitted to play with a catcher's mitt in a pinch?

A.—No. If he is not possessed of a baseman's mitt he is supposed to play in a bare hand.

Q.—Is a blow to the head more telling than one to the face?

A.—All depends on the force and accuracy of the blow. A blow to the face is not as noticeable as the one to the head, but it is just as much effect, if not more according to the condition of the boxer, as one to the head. Box punches are rare these days.

Q.—Where is Clark Shaughnessy, the former Tulane coach now coaching?

A.—At Loyola in New Orleans.

Kraft Cheese bowlers of Appleton rolled six games with Ford du Lac teams in the Mid-Wisconsin league Sunday and won four games and lost two. The quietest bowler was the Badger Paints in three games and won one from the Arcades.

The Cheese were paced by Breckin in their win over the Paints. He hit 169, 245, 225—639. Mitchell had a 263 in one game, Beck 221, 212 and Currie a 216. In the third game the team rolled a 1943 game and had 2059 for the match score. The best effort of the Badgers was a 213, 174, 217—604 by Meyn.

The Cheese didn't fair so well with the Fordy Arcades winning only the second game. Schabo's 292 was high for the Appleton team in the first game but his mates had 154, 158, 162, 178. In the second game Beck's 222 turned the trick for the Cheese and they dropped it under a barrage of 200 scores by the Arcades. Paquin of the winners had 183, 219, 234 for a 641 series.

F. Felts of the Sturgeons, rolled 298, 247 155—615 and Hy Struts rolled 247, 191, 218—656 as the team copped three straight from the Tarpon.

After losing the first game to the Halibut, the Perch rallied and copped the second and third to remain in first place. A 203 by M. King and a 201 by L. Sheldon did the work in the first victory and King's 199 in the second.

The Bluefish couldn't make their hooks and splits behave and they dropped two games to the Herring. The Bluefish turned in a nice score in the first game and won easily when they wilted and dropped the last two.

Chaff 'n Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

Retrospect
THE 1931 season for Appleton high school football team is over and therefore it's the proper time to review, and perhaps say something about the outlook for next year.

When the season started Coach Joseph Shields complained that he had no line, a veteran backfield combination and no reserves for it. And he was right. He drilled the team for two or three weeks set it against Stevens Point in a non-conference game and it looked bad.

There was no fire to backfield maneuvers and the line was just as green as Shields had said it was. Three days before the first conference game with East Green Bay the Orange merrit still was complaining in his very best manner.

And then something happened and Shields took the "bull by the horns," to use an ancient gag which still fills a place in the English language, and one night turned the team into the Assistant Coach Marian Soms to work with until it had the play cramped into its head and half way down to its tummy. And that's what Soms did.

Joe in the meantime took the backs and ran them ragged on plays until they learned the motions thoroughly; he corrected their every move and after one night's workout they too looked much better. The same stunt was pulled the next night and two days later the team went out against East Green Bay.

The first place better ball but the long passes used by the Orange East on four downs. The Orange backfield's lack of dash and interest and enthusiasm in what was going on, however, seemed to have been between the lines. Shields talked to the dressing room and the result was Joe Vetter's sensational running job and use Emmert Norrell on more plays in other words, made of them the team's best performance to date.

Joe, probably recall what happened on that last line. The Orange left tackle opened a hole on one occasion and Kroch went into a scoring position. A few minutes later Kroch was downed and the Orange's first and only score, both points after the touchdown were made and Appleton registered a victory, 14 and 0.

And then came the game with the Orange which was a defeat against East Green Bay. The Orange scored half of the points scored on East during the season.

THIN.
Remembering that Appleton's defeat was a home game, it was a bit of a surprise that the Orange went to West and lost because of some really dangerous on the question of forward passes. It was said by the Orange that the Orange's defense was not as good as it was.

ASSOCIATION HEADS MEET IN CHICAGO

Tim Hickey Faces Annual Fight to Retain Job as AA Boss

Chicago.—(AP)—President Thomas J. Hickey of the American association, today faced what seems to be an annual campaign to unseat him, but apparently with the advantage on his side.

Club owners of the association, one of the three AA circuits, were in Chicago for the annual meeting, and the big item on the business schedule concerned Hickey's tenure of office. The Hickey forces claimed four votes as certain, which would be sufficient to keep him in the office he has held for 18 years.

His principal opposition was expected to come from backers of George Belden, president of the Minneapolis club.

Belden stood out as a possibility because of reports that Mike Kelley, present manager of the Millers, might be elevated to the presidency of the club, and that Donnie Bush, who piloted the Chicago White Sox during the 1930 and 1931 campaigns, would assume Kelley's job. Other possibilities were Joe Carr, president of the National Professional Football league, and William Clauser, former secretary of the Indianapolis club.

It was hinted that Hickey, if ousted from his present position, might become a candidate for the presidency of the National Association of Minor Leagues. M. L. Sexton, president of the latter group, also is said to have opposition which will present a candidate at the annual convention at West Baden, Ind., early next month.

The American association also had the problem of doing something about its Toledo franchise. The Toledo club finished the season in deep financial trouble and the franchise may be moved. Schedule making will be deferred until the club owners meet at the West Baden convention.

In the backfield the only two men returning are Ruppel and Vic Salm. Both should get somewhere next season. Ruppel showed well when he was in the backfield, but he is underestimating Morrell for he can be a smashing fullback of the type a coach likes to have. Inexperience kept them from working more this year.

That means ends, at least one guard and two

Your Birthday

"SCORPIO"

If November 18th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 9:10 a. m., from 2:30 p. m. to 4 p. m., and from 8 p. m. to 9:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 11:30 a. m. to 1 p. m. and from 5:30 p. m. to 7 p. m. Those who are engaged in business and the professional worker, are advised to take stock of their positions on November 18th. A move is indicated wherein existing conditions can be bettered and new prospects opened up. It will not be a lonely time—old friendships will flourish, and new associations formed.

Children born on this November 18th will be endowed with good vitality and will have strong, positive, forceful personalities. When aroused, they will show firmness, energy and enterprise, ambition and self-reliance. They will have good opinions of themselves and will like the good opinion of others, even their flattery.

You have a very quick, sympathetic and inspirational nature, with a tendency to go to extremes. A certain amount of restlessness is shown and business, especially in speech, sunshine, literal and metaphorical, affects you favorably and makes your spirits rise mercurially under almost any circumstances. Your mentality becomes stimulated, your vivacity is aroused, your smile is spontaneous, and you are glad to be alive, and show it. Not such a pleasant picture, however, can be drawn when life seems cold and drab. You are then inclined to wilt and your personality is not an attractive one. The corners of your mouth droop, your interest in life lags and your mind functions slowly. Success is a tonic to you; failure is a complete knock-out.

No one can do their work with a greater degree of efficiency than you, but you must be in a working mood. When interested in anything, you throw yourself unreservedly into your task and express much originality. If you are a woman, you have an artistic and delicate touch and your home and dress reveal this gift. Your other drive, but untidiness does not annoy you. An early marriage would not be advisable for one of your temperament. You will not know your own mind in affairs of the heart until you have reached an advanced age of maturity. You will always remain very romantic.

Wall Street Assailed By Gov. Murray

Des Moines—(AP)—The National Farmers' union opened its sessions here today with a pre-convention warning from Gov. William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray that the "economic lever must be reversed or the country will march on to destruction."

The farmer and middleman must be freed from the "chains of Wall-st." If prosperity is to return, the "sage of Tishomingo" told 1,500 delegates at a banquet last night.

Taxes, he contended, must be readjusted on the basis of ability to pay. He advocated a graduated income tax.

Charging a Wall-st. coup d'etat in the congress of 1895 which having started the present economic disorders, he continued that "no country can exist without the plow" and advocated a banking system that would finance farmers and small businessmen over an extended period.

In 1875, Murray said, "a 10 per cent tax was placed on the stock banks existing and flourishing in this country. The tax loan drove them out of existence and with them the only source of long time loans to producers."

Then began the economic decline which is at its climax now," he said. His deduction of a solution to present conditions included the assertion that "if we elect a courageous and able administration in 1932 it will be at least a year before its effect can be felt."

"If we elect a tool of Wall-st. and big business, the end is at hand." Gov. Dan Turner of Iowa preceded the Oklahoma executive, paid tribute to Murray's integrity of character and advocated broadly a program of fair prices for farm commodities, lower interest rates, and a reduction of burdening taxes.

Tom Howard, secretary-treasurer of the Colorado Farmers' union, introduced Gov. Murray. Charles S. Barrett of Georgia, former national president of the Farmers' union, was a speaker.

Kellogg's All-Bran supplies "BULK," VITAMIN B, IRON

Kellogg's All-Bran provides "bulk" in a convenient, everyday form. This "bulk" is much like that in lettuce, but it is concentrated in more convenient form to relieve constipation.

Inside the body, Kellogg's All-Bran isn't like you see it in the package, but a soft mass. This gently cleanses the intestines of waste.

In this, it is aided by Vitamin B, richly present in All-Bran. This vitamin tones the intestines, promoting regularity.

Just eat two tablespoons daily of Kellogg's All-Bran—usually enough for most types of constipation. If you suffer from intestinal trouble not relieved this way, see your doctor.

PROPOSED CANAL WOULD AID FISH, SAYS U. S. REPORT

(Post-Crescent—Washington Bureau) Washington—Reassuring perturbed Wisconsin sportsmen who fear that the war department's nine-foot channel project in the upper Mississippi will spoil their fishing sport, the bureau of fisheries has reported that the canalization project will not be harmful and may indeed be beneficial to fish life in that area. If pollution and silt of the river are first corrected.

Progress of work to safeguard and improve fishing condition in Wisconsin lakes was also noted in the report, which was submitted by Henry O'Malley, Commissioner of Fisheries, for the fiscal year 1931.

In Lake Michigan a comprehensive program of experimental fishing with gill nets and numerous points typical of the entire lake has been continued, employing the fisheries motor boats. Effort, in an effort to perfect fishing gear which will be effective for catching chubs without at the same time destroying a great number of immature lake trout, the report states.

"Experimental fish-capture studies have contributed much information to the life histories of the important fishes taken and such data accumulating as the fall work progresses will be of material value in the drafting of fishery regulations by the various states."

Detailed studies of the rate of growth of various food and game fishes in Wisconsin lakes were also made by the bureau investigators in the hope of correlating their findings with "the great mass of limnological observations obtained by the Wisconsin Geological and Natural History survey in a study of the factors affecting fish growth and reproduction."

In the Mississippi territory a new record was set in fish rescue work. 182,554.861 fish being salvaged in the area during the fiscal year 1931. Of this number less than 1 per cent were used to fill applications outside of the rescue district. Weather conditions during the year were said to be unusually favorable to this work.

Although the site of the new Wisconsin fish culture station, to be built in connection with the 5-year construction program of the Bureau of Fisheries, was selected at Lake Mills, the title to the site was not perfected during the fiscal year, and necessarily construction work could not be begun.

The catch of fresh water muskies throughout the country amounted to 59,490,000 pounds in 1930, which was 9 per cent greater than the 1929 catch, but the fisheries at Lakes Pepin and Keokuk decreased in 1930 as compared with 1929.

Angling is steadily increasing as a sport in the United States, the report states, estimating that more than 8,500,000 persons fish for recreation and that the value of fishing tackle manufactured is about $25,000,000.

The high economic value of America's commercial fisheries is revealed by the fact that the fishing industry gave jobs to 191,000 persons in 1929 and yielded a catch amounting to 3,567,000,000 pounds and valued at $123,000,000.

Wisconsin's part in maintaining the country's commercial fisheries was also cited in the report. During 1931 the distribution of commercial species of fish in interior waters was increased. Notwithstanding that the carp propagation was suspended at the Put In Bay, Ohio station, a large increase in carp output was made possible through operations conducted at Bellevue and Greentown, Ia., and in the La Crosse field, according to the report.

SEVERAL TEACHERS' MEETINGS SCHEDULED

Several groups of teachers' meetings are scheduled at Lincoln school and Appleton high school this week.

The first of a series of grade school teachers' meetings began Monday at Lincoln school under the direction of Supt. Ben J. Rohan. The purpose of this group meeting, which included grade school teachers from the kindergarten through the sixth grades, was to discuss the philosophies and purpose behind education.

Junior high school teachers have been meeting every Thursday for several weeks to discuss the same subject, with the new exploratory science series in junior high schools as illustrations of modern education.

Junior high school English teachers met at 4:30 Monday afternoon at Appleton high school to discuss book reports in their classes. Miss Kathleen Kimball, Wilson junior high school, was in charge. Miss Hilda Kippinham, Wilson junior high school, will have charge of the meeting of junior high school social science teachers at 4:30 Wednesday afternoon at the high school.

the only way to protect both your motor and your radiator from cold

THE Pines Winterfront covers the radiator completely. Thus, it keeps in the heat generated by your motor—protects both the radiator and the motor from cold blasts. Makes the motor warm up quicker. Stops drafts. Makes your water heater work better. Keeps your motor running at a safe temperature. Winterfront protection is complete protection.

Saves many times its cost
A Winterfront is a wise investment for any car owner. Here is how it pays for itself over and over again.

1. Makes cylinder oil last longer—It stops excessive use of the choke which always dilutes the oil unnecessarily. It also prevents condensation of water in the crank case which further dilutes the oil.
2. Stops damage to motor—Using the choke washes away the film of protection. This results in excessive wear on cylinders and scored pistons. The Winterfront prevents this excessive damage.
3. Saves gasoline—because it automatically keeps your motor running at the proper temperature all the time.
4. Saves batteries—because it reduces the stalling of the motor during the warming-up period.
5. Makes your car heater heat the inside of your car quicker and better.

LADY with a PAST

BY HARRIET HENRY

SYNOPSIS: An invitation to Mrs. Coates' villa at Biarritz gives Venice Muir further scope in her campaign for popularity. She is creating for herself the reputation of dazzling social success in Europe, with which to return home and win a New York that has considered her a social liability. Guy Bryson has helped launch her in Paris. Now Rene de Thenardier is pursuing her. Mrs. Coates has invited Rene in the hope of interesting him in her niece, Rosemary. Venice cares for Rene only as a symbol of her success and wants him to marry Rosemary.

she slept too much anyway, and Guy writing letters. "I'm sorry," cried Venice, "to have kept you waiting. It was lovely in the sun." "It was divine," said Rene. "I was looking disgusted." "Do you want to come with us?" she asked. "Please." The three of them drove to St. Jean-de-Luz. When they returned to the villa there was a letter on the hall table for Rene. He took it with noticeable eagerness and disappeared. Later at dinner he was quite silent and ate little. Venice watching him wondered who the letter was from and what news it could have held. Rene's face was strained and there were shadows under his eyes as though he had suffered in the last hour. She noticed that Guy watched him too. She had heard the two men talking after Rene had gone upstairs with the letter and she surmised that Guy knew what it contained. There were no plans for the evening and Guy, Rosemary and Mrs. Coates went out on the veranda. With their going Venice looked about for Rene. He mustn't be left alone with that stricken look in his eyes. She went slowly upstairs, determined to knock at his door and ask him to join the others. It wasn't necessary. Rene sat in a bay window of the hall jutting out over the sea. One elbow on the sill, his chin rested in the cup of his hand. His face was turned away towards the water. "Rene," she said softly. He turned. "Ah, Venice, it is you. Come and sit down." He moved over and she settled on the broadened seat beside him. "You're sad," she said. "What is it, Rene? Can I help you?" "Not sad. Serious this evening. Will you do me the honour to marry me, Venice?" She had never felt so painfully embarrassed in her life. His tone was inexpressible, desperate, soft, gentle yet devoid of any passion whatsoever. She was anxious to know whether her answer would hurt him or not. She remembered his desire for American money and yet there was something pregnant with meaning in his face. Was it feeling for her? Or that Venice? Were they connected? Perhaps his apparent distress was preparation for the worst. She laid a hand on his that tensely gripped his knee. "I can't, Rene." "Why?" "I don't love you that way." "I could teach you." "No. I'm not like that. I must love." "Please. Mon Dieu." It was as though he was drowning. She felt herself suffocating with a situation that she could not fathom. She remembered Guy warning her. There was a married woman somewhere. "No," she said getting up, "I'm not going to see you tonight. I'm going to bed." She did not look back. She dreaded seeing and the new dawn under his face. Did he love her? Could Guy be wrong? She heard a curious stifled noise, the sound of something knocking the "s". She turned suddenly. He was nowhere about. She knew, before she had time to turn to the window, that he had turned out. But she had to make sure. Her heart was pounding. She went to the door and saw a man in a dark coat and a hat. He was looking at her. "Guy," she shrieked. "Mrs. Coates." "Copyright, Harriet Henry." And Rene? Venice finds herself strangely linked with him, on Monday.

U. S. ATTITUDE ON MANCHURIA DISTURBS PARIS

League Fears America Changes Stand—Russia Also Causes Anxiety

Dawes and Chairman Briand with the Chinese and Japanese spokesmen, Dr. Sze and Ambassador Tozawa.

The impression gained ground that Ambassador Charles G. Dawes and the United States government are not inclined to cooperate closely with the league in its efforts to settle the controversy, and a report was received from a high authority that Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar for foreign affairs, has filed a protest at Tokyo regarding Japanese army movements in the region of the Chinese Eastern railway which is in the Russian sphere of influence in Manchuria.

This news led to the belief that Russia would not keep her hands off the situation indefinitely. If the league and the United States failed to halt the Japanese advance.

Dawes Reluctant

General Dawes denied himself to questions but the impression was gained at his headquarters that the United States government now regrets having worked with league leaders so intimately at the last session of the council and believes the more prudent course now is to forget the request to Japan to withdraw her troops by a fixed date.

The French press has adopted an attitude frankly favorable to the Japanese and expressed the belief that the great powers, except Germany, are beginning to regard Japan as the defender of the validity of existing treaties and a protector of the status quo.

Prentiss Gilbert, United States consul general at Geneva, who sat at the council table during the previous session, was considered here to have been discarded, and league supporters regarded this development as unfortunate.

They pointed out today that the change leaves the United States without representation at the council table and that General Dawes and his staff have not the advantage of the close acquaintance with the previous moves that Mr. Gilbert and his staff had.

Intimations from Manchuria that Russia is showing concern over Japanese moves there reawakened talk of Soviet intervention "to save China from the invader."

Sze Expects Action

Dr. Sze, Chinese spokesman, has given notice that he expects action from the council and will no longer be satisfied with promises. Chinese sympathizers now suggest that if the Nanking government can't get help from the league and the United States its next move will be to accept Soviet assistance to defend its territorial integrity. They insist the joining of China's 400,000,000 people with the millions of Russians, would constitute a formidable share of the human race.

In certain quarters it was said that a so-called compromise plan discussed last night amounts to an effort by the great powers to rebid China to the old treaties under which the great nations enjoyed special privileges of extraterritoriality in Chinese territory.

The Chinese position is that these treaties were concluded under pressure and are invalid and that so far as the Sino-Japanese "treaty" of 1915 is concerned the position has received United States support. The Chinese are determined resolutely to maintain this position but have said they are willing to arbitrate the question of the validity of the disputed treaties.

This issue touches the question of the validity of the World War peace treaties and has aroused apprehension among the French, Polish and little entente diplomats.

Dr. Sze, the Chinese representative, continued to maintain a cheerful attitude, however, in spite of the developments. If the powers press for "the sanctity of treaties" he said, he will demand that the council express its opinion on the "sanctity of the Kellogg pact, the nine power treaty and the league covenant itself."

Tokio—(P)—The Japanese war office said today General Mah Chan-Shan's Chinese forces advanced to a point 10 miles from the Japanese position at Tachang, just north of the Nonni river bridge and began an attack, threatening to envelop the Japanese right flank.

Dispatches to the Rango News agency from Harbin, Manchuria, however, stated that General Mah's army began a retreat northward toward Anganchi after General Mah had accepted the truce demands laid down last week by General Shigeru Honjo, Japanese commander.

The war office official dispatches said the Chinese cavalry attacked at Shungshuayuan, east of Tachang, yesterday morning and inflicted ten casualties before they were repulsed. Several air force detachments left Hamnan-su, Tachang and Pingwang, Japan, this morning for Manchuria. The groups included scout, bombing and fighting planes, although the strength of the expedition was not given.

Won't Raise Demands

Japan has no intention of raising the so-called twenty-one demands in any proposal for direct negotiation with China in the present situation, the government declared in a note sent to Ambassador Debutch at Washington and to other ambassadors today.

The note pointed out that the alleged "twenty-one demands" which China contends were "extracted under duress" in reality simmered down to three points concerning Manchuria and these, Japan contends, were concerned only with the powers raised objections to Japan's intentions concerning these three points which were the outgrowth of the treaty of 1915, the note said.

FOUR BADGER BOYS IN STOCK COMPETITION

Chicago—(P)—Four Wisconsin youths who have entered the Junior feeding competition at the 1931 International Livestock Exposition to be held at Chicago Nov. 23 to Dec. 5, B. H. Heide, manager of the show, has announced.

The Wisconsin Junior exhibitors are Homer Graber, of Iowa county, and Kenneth Zink, of Dane county, both of whom will display baby beavers; and Arthur and Walter Templeton, of Rock county, who have entered animals in the lamb classes.

Most of the animals to be displayed in the Junior feeding contest have already won prizes at state and county fairs and competitions. This year is expected to be greater than previous years. In the 1929 show, Marcel Zink, Kenneth's brother, entered a hereford steer, Chubby, which captured the reserve championship of the Junior show and later was awarded the blue ribbon in the open grade and crossbreed competition.

holdings in the South Manchurian railway and land leases.

The telegram recalled a proposal of Charles Evans Hughes, that the United States, under the most favored nation clause should reserve the right, the same as other powers, theoretically, at least, to any advantages which in time might be derived, particularly in the matter of leaseholds.

DEMAND ON NANKING

Shanghai—(P)—A demand that the Nanking government cease what he called its "weak-kneed" attitude toward Japanese military operations in Manchuria was made today by Hu Han-Ming, former chief of the Government's executive branch and leader of the Kuomintang, the Nationalist party.

"If the government continues its weak-kneed policy of nonresistance, irresponsibility and inertia," Hu said, "in the face of continually more serious invasions of Manchuria by the Japanese, the whole Chinese race and nation must soon perish."

"China, as an independent nation, should determine what action is necessary for hastening withdrawal of the Japanese."

"Whatever the outcome of the league council's session at Paris," declared Wang Ching-Wel, young leftist Canton leader, "China will stand firm before any Japanese show of force."

CITY EVACUATED

London—(P)—A dispatch to the London Daily Mail today from its correspondent at Tetsihar, Manchuria, said the city was almost completely evacuated last night after Japanese airplanes flew over it at noon.

The planes dropped about 30 bombs on the position of the Chinese troops south of Anganchi, it said, but they did little damage.

The planes disappeared from Tetsihar after Chinese troops there opened fire on them, but the populace, recalling that Japanese officials and military officers had left the city, guessed that an air raid was planned.

The people fled immediately and scattered over the countryside.

Only two foreigners remained in the city, a British officer and the mail's correspondent, the dispatch said. American newspaper men left after the departure of the Japanese consul Saturday night, it said, and four missionaries were recalled to Harbin by an urgent telegram from the American consulate.

Tokio—(P)—General Mah Chan-Shan, the Chinese commander in Manchuria, has submitted a set of counter proposals to the Japanese General Honjo, dispatches from Mukden said today, but is standing his ground south of Anganchi with no indication that he intends to withdraw.

Dispatches from Harbin earlier in the day indicated that General Mah had accepted the Japanese demand that he withdraw, but the Mukden report of the counter proposals said he would fail back only if the Japanese evacuate the Nonni river sector and give guarantees that General Chang Hui-Peng shall not be permitted to use the Taonan-Anganchi railway.

General Mah also repeated his assertion that he cannot withdraw as his forces north of the Chinese Eastern railway because of the presence of bandits in the south.

Battle Creek—Roxie, a German shepherd dog, has escaped a death sentence by going into exile. He was under $200 bond pending appeal from a court order for his destruction on a charge of viciousness but the case has been dropped. His owner informed the court that he had sent Roxie to Geneva, Ind., to Miss Mildred Heller. "I'm satisfied," said Justice Paul Shafer, "maybe I won't get any more letters calling me names."

CHURCHES FACE LIGHT PROGRAM FOR THIS WEEK

Number of Congregations Cooperate in Men and Missions Service

After a heavy Sunday program, churches in the city face a reasonably light program for the week. There will be the usual number of Ladies Aid, Missionary and Brotherhood meetings, but few conventions and all-church gatherings.

A number of churches cooperated Sunday in the Men and Missions service at the Presbyterian church at which S. F. Shattuck of Neenah delivered the address. The service was in observance of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the Laymen's Missionary movement.

The annual mission festival was held at Zion Lutheran church Sunday, with the Rev. George Mueckling of Arcadia, the Rev. Thomas Petersen of Zimau and the Rev. Charles J. Lange of Oshkosh as guest speakers. Mr. Lange described mission work in India, and told of the great need of the gospel in that country. He said that the American Lutheran church supports 28 missionaries in India, and has 250 native helpers. Mission work in India costs the synod about $75,000 a year. Mr. Mueckling preached on "Thy Kingdom Come at the English service in the morning, and Mr. Petersen talked about India at the German service. A male octette and children's chorus provisioned music. The Zion Lutheran Mission society will meet at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The twenty-fifth Sunday after Trinity and the end of the present church year will be observed next Sunday.

Anniversary Observed

Four pastors from out of town conducted the special services at St. Matthew church which celebrated the seventh anniversary of the dedication of the church. The Rev. E. Redlin of the town of Ellington and the Rev. L. Mielke of Shiocton were in charge of the German services, and the Rev. Kurt Timmel of North Fond du Lac and the Rev. Paul Bergmann of Rhineland the English services. The ladies of the church served a chicken dinner and supper.

Miss Mary Laughlin, missionary from India, spoke at the Baptist church Sunday evening, and in the morning the Rev. Ernest Hasselblad continued his series of sermons on the subject, "Who's Who in the Kingdom of God: Christ. The Women's Union Christmas bazaar will be held Wednesday and the church school cabinet will meet Friday evening.

Transferring on the text, "Be ye transformed by the renewing of your minds," Dr. J. A. Holmes, in Sunday morning, contrasted the keenness of the senses of modern and primitive man. He showed how modern man's senses have been dulled by mechanical inventions, how spectacles have made it unnecessary to have as true an eye as primitive man, how the telephone and radio have taken away the need for keen sense of hearing, how highways and signboards have made it easier for man today to determine direction and how electric clocks have eliminated the custom of time-telling by the sun. Primitive man had as little to guide him in his spiritual growth as in material things, he said, and therefore modern man's spiritual growth should be commensurate with the material growth of the world. Instead, he declared, the mind and the attitude toward spiritual things is too often shoddy. He urged his congregation to follow Christ, who is continually renewing his mind.

Open Vesper Services

Gail's oratorio "Ruth" was presented at the first vesper service of the season Sunday afternoon, under the direction of Dean Carl J. Waterman. Miss Esther Miller addressed the Fireside Fellowship group. The Methodist Men's club will hold a supper and program Friday evening.

W. G. Wittenborn was the lay speaker at the Men and Missions service at St. John church Sunday morning. At the German service the Rev. W. R. Wetzler preached on Our Heavenly Heritage. The young people will hold a social meeting Tuesday evening.

A triumph of St. Elizabeth's patron saint, is being held this week at St. Joseph church. There will be an English sermon at 7:30 every evening, and a German sermon at 8:30 every morning. The Rev. Father Williams talked at the meeting of the Third Order of St. Francis Sunday afternoon. The group took corporate communion in the morning.

The Appleton Apostolate will give the third of its series of benefit parties at St. Theresa hall Wednesday evening. A collection for the Catholic university in Washington, D. C., will be taken in all Catholic churches Sunday.

Prof. W. C. Hewitt of Oshkosh State Teachers college was the speaker at the rally of Presbyterian church men Monday evening. Sunday morning W. S. Ryan occupied the pulpit. The first choir practice was held Monday night and the Home-builders will meet Thursday evening.

New Order Formed

A junior order of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew was organized at All Saints Episcopal church Sunday, with 25 charter members. Dr. L. D. Uts preached on The Gospel and the Cross. Dr. Uts will attend a convention of presidents of Parent Teacher associations in Chicago Friday.

Three members of the Reformed church attended a district rally of Christian Endeavor Societies at Marinette Sunday. The Rev. E. F. Franz preached on The Power of Prayer Sunday morning. The annual county fair and chicken supper will be held Tuesday evening. Ladies Aid society will meet Thursday afternoon and the thank offering program of the Women's Missionary society and the Mission band will be held Sunday afternoon.

George Schaefer spoke on the Farmers' Problems in Wisconsin at the meeting of the Women's association of the Congregational church Tuesday afternoon. Carl Wetengel presented moving pictures of his travels in Europe at the meeting of the Young People's Fellowship group Sunday evening, and "The Transgressor" was the subject of the Sunday evening motion picture service. The church cabinet will meet for supper Tuesday evening.

Members of Emmanuel Evangelical church attended an E. L. C. E. Rally at the Catholic church Sunday evening and in the evening the Rev. G. H. Blum preached at a dedicatory service at Dorchester. This week Mr. Blum is conducting a series of Evangelistic services at Morrison. The Women's Missionary society will meet Thursday afternoon.

Plan Get-Together

The annual get-together of First English Lutheran church will be held Wednesday evening at Castle hall, and the Ladies' Missionary society will meet Thursday afternoon. The Rev. P. C. Reuter preached on The Invitation Sunday morning.

The Rev. D. E. Besserman preached on Paul's Vision of True Christians at Trinity English Lutheran church Sunday morning. The Sunday School teachers met Monday evening, the missionary society will meet Tuesday evening, and a congregational supper will be held Thursday evening. A thank offering service will be held Sunday evening.

The Rev. R. E. Ziesemer preached.

HUSBAND DOESN'T DO HOUSEWORK SO WIFE ASKS DECREE

Chicago—(P)—Judge Joseph Sabath was told yesterday that it's discouraging for a young woman to come home after a hard day at the office and find that her husband hasn't dusted the radio or washed the dishes.

The complainant was Mrs. Elizabeth Didier, who asked for a divorce charging cruelty.

She alleges that when she and Didier were married last spring a contract was drawn up whereby she was to keep the wolf from the door while he did the housework. He fulfilled part of the contract, she said, in that he turned out some money fine meals, but the trouble started when she came home from a try-out day at the office to find there was dust on the chairs and that other housework was left undone.

When she complained about it he beat her, she alleged.

FRAME-UP INDICATED AT PANTAGES' TRIAL

Los Angeles—(P)—Defense counsel for Alexander Pantages, theatrical magnate charged with attacking Eunice Pringle, young dancer, today sought to strengthen their claim of frame-up in the case with new witnesses and new testimony.

Seven witnesses have testified in support of Pantages' assertion that the charge against him was a "frame up."

Mrs. Myrtle Hawley, landlady of a Hollywood house where lived Nicholas Dunay, Miss Pringle's theatrical partner, testified to a conversation she allegedly had with Ivan Sansanoff, Dunay's roommate, when she questioned them about the presence of Miss Pringle in the apartment.

"We are going to make a lot of money out of this girl," Mrs. Hawley said Sansanoff told her. "We are going to set her in with Alexander Pantages or Sid Grauman, probably Pantages, because he has the most money."

Grauman is a former Hollywood theatre owner.

The defense probably will take the greater part of the week in presenting its witnesses.

WHO'S NEW IN CONGRESS

Cookeville, Tenn.—(P)—If one is elected representative and his congressional district is moved out from under him one way to solve the problem is to move with it.

That's what J. R. Mitchell has done.

J. R. Mitchell

Tennessee's back-slapping, round-bellied, hand-shaking, nose-cracking representative who from the fourth district lived at only one place in the second house of Congress, but who could carry the district, Mitchell promptly moved to Cookeville in Davis' district.

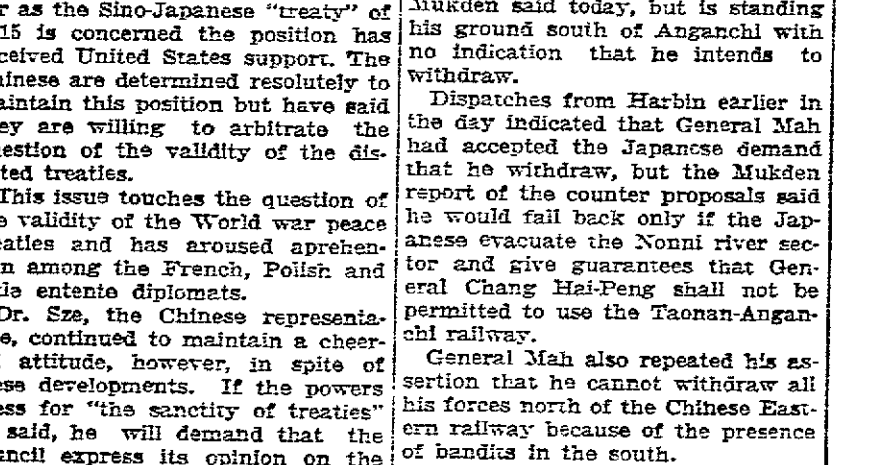

The race between them will be a close one. Mitchell's friends say that the democratic legislators intentionally put Crossville in the second house because they thought he was a man who could carry the district. Mitchell promptly moved to Cookeville in Davis' district.

Despite his jovial nature Mitchell has his serious side. As district prosecutor he was vigorous and even relentless. As banker he acquired a reputation for shrewdness in business.

Japan has no intention of raising the so-called twenty-one demands in any proposal for direct negotiation with China in the present situation, the government declared in a note sent to Ambassador Debutch at Washington and to other ambassadors today.

The note pointed out that the alleged "twenty-one demands" which China contends were "extracted under duress" in reality simmered down to three points concerning Manchuria and these, Japan contends, were concerned only with the powers raised objections to Japan's intentions concerning these three points which were the outgrowth of the treaty of 1915, the note said.

SEE LARGER AND BETTER YIELD OF SUGAR FROM BEETS

U. S. Department's Report Shows Better Quality of Product

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau) Washington—Beet sugar has recently showed an improvement in quality and a larger and better yield of sugar from beets may be expected in the future, as a result of investigations being conducted by the bureau of chemistry and soils of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

This information, encouraging to Wisconsin growers of sugar-beets, is contained in the annual report of Henry G. Knight, chief of the bureau, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1931.

Soil conditions, fertilizer, weather conditions, and storage are being studied for their possible effect on the content of sugar-beet juice, with a view of reducing to a minimum the nonsugar content, according to the report.

Inorganic and organic phosphorus compounds, various sulphur compounds and some nitrogenous compounds are some of the undesirable products, often found in sugar-beet juice, which the investigators hope to partially eliminate.

"Samples of beet sugar collected this season were of better quality than those of the preceding season," the report states. "This improvement is attributed to a considerable degree, to improvements resulting from suggestions derived from the investigation."

Besides working to increase the yield from this important Badger crop, the bureau reported conducting a soil survey in Wisconsin and other states.

During the fiscal year 1931, the survey was continued in Barron and Crawford counties, where a total of 660 square miles of land was surveyed and mapped. Added to the acres classified in previous years, this brings the Wisconsin total to 26,527 square miles or 16,977,250 acres of classified land.

By means of this classification, Uncle Sam hopes eventually to guide farmers to confine their labors solely to profitable lands. Such a policy is particularly important because of the present critical condition of agriculture, according to the report.

"One of the important results of the agricultural crisis now prevailing in the United States will doubtless be the increasing demand for land classification," says the report.

"A classification of land on the basis of the soil is far more complete for agricultural purposes than a classification of any other possible basis because the soil is the one factor involved in agriculture that expresses the combined result of all factors of geographic environment on which agriculture is dependent."

"The agricultural crisis will make necessary the final adjustment of agriculture to the best lands. The knowledge being accumulated by the soil survey will be of the greatest possible assistance in making these adjustments that are so important and essential to the future development of our agricultural industry."

OUTPUT OF CANNED CORN SHOWS INCREASE

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau) Washington — Wisconsin canneries increased their output of canned corn to 711,618 cases in 1931 from 685,974 cases in 1930, according to the Department of Commerce.

This increase reflected the general increase in canned corn production of manufacturers throughout the country, who reported 19,414,667 cases produced in 1931 as compared to 15,692,172 produced in 1930.

Illinois canners led the country in quantity output for both years, producing 3,783,167 cases in 1931 and 2,261,974 cases in 1930. Iowa was the second largest producer in 1931, displacing Minnesota which was second in 1930.

Estimates are based on cases containing the equivalent of 24 number 2 cans.

STATE FUEL COST IS $46,545,165

Find Wisconsin Ranks Tenth Among All States of Nation

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau) Washington—Fuel, including purchased electric energy, cost Wisconsin industries $46,545,165 in 1929, according to statistics made public Monday by the census bureau. Thus the Badger state had the tenth highest bill of all the states.

The largest single item in Wisconsin was $24,626,805 spent for 5,540,613 tons of bituminous coal. Purchased electric energy was second, costing the state $12,422,939 for 934,645,936 kilowatt hours. Other totals were: anthracite coal, $965,818 for 226,484 tons; coke, $2,096,908 for 273,010 tons; fuel oil, $3,181,977 for 68,412,609 gallons; gasoline and kerosene, $447,500 for 3,701,613 gallons; manufactured gas, $2,014,127 for 8,016,028,000 cubic feet and other fuels, $2,168,912.

The fuel bill of the industries of the nation totaled $1,978,863,829. Pennsylvania, paying $348,130,310 for fuel led all the states, and California, Illinois, Indiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey, New York and Ohio, had bigger bills than the Badger state.

For the country as a whole, the consumption of every kind of fuel increased considerably during the decade from 1919 to 1929, except anthracite coal, which decreased from 14,334,402 to 9,281,416 tons during that period.

SPEND FUNDS TO IMPROVE CHEESE

Find Wisconsin Produces Most of Swiss Cheese for World

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau) Washington — The cooperative project of the bureau of dairy industry and the University of Wisconsin to improve the quality of Swiss cheese produced in the Badger state, was the principal service item of the bureau's fiscal year 1931, which ended on June 30, 1931, according to its annual report.

Within a radius of 25 miles of Monroe, Wis., 84.6 per cent of all the Swiss cheese made in the United States is produced. According to the producers themselves, only about 25 per cent of this cheese is up to the standard of Fancy or No. 1 cheese. About 50 per cent of the imported Swiss cheese will score that high, according to the bureau of dairy industry. The bureau has, however, developed in its Washington laboratory, Swiss cheese, of which about 80 per cent rates the highest quality.

The cooperative plan of the bureau and the University of Wisconsin was to attempt to raise the Wisconsin cheese to the bureau's standard—and consequently above the standard of the imported cheese, of which 70,000,000 pounds are usually imported each year to earn $20,000,000 of American money. The plan called for the sending of one of the bureau's experts to the Badger state to apply the experimental methods in the factories, and for the University of Wisconsin to furnish another man, whose work was to be the development of a high grade milk in the territory. One of the most important phases of bettering cheese is to better the milk supply.

In addition to furnishing one man, the University was to pay the traveling expenses of the federal bureau man and furnish him a laboratory or laboratory facilities. An appropriation of $3,500 was included in the agriculture department appropriation bill for 1932 for this work.

LOWER FREIGHT ON WAUPACA SHIPMENTS

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau) Washington — Freight rates on potatoes shipped from the Waupaca co-op in Wisconsin to Chicago and other official territory markets will be lower than those established by the Interstate Commerce commission on last April 14.

On that date, the commission rendered its decision in the Leonard, Cresset and Riley and combined potato rate cases, affecting the general potato rate structure in Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota and North Dakota. At that time, the Wisconsin rates were to be 6 cents lower per 100 pounds than the applicable rates from the Princeton group in Minnesota.

The I. C. C. has now modified that decision, stating that rates established as Class C rates in the Western Trunk Line Class Rate Investigation should apply from the Waupaca group on potatoes even though these class C rates are lower in some instances than the previously prescribed 6 cents less than Princeton.
